REALTOR TO TRY NEW DEPARTURE IN HOME BUILDING

Plan Erection of Sixteen Model Homes in One Block

Arlington Heights is going to have some model homes. There will be sixteen of them when they are all completed. There will be no two alike. Mr. C. M. Behrens is the builder who is trying the experiment of erecting an entire block of modern homes, built upon lines that may be new to Arlington Heights people, but which will have a distinctiveness to them that will make the buyers sit up and take notice. Mr. Behrens does not call it an experiment—that is, so far as the erection of the houses are concerned. He has a sure thing in that regard. His experience in the local real estate game has shown him that many fine people are kept from locating in Arlington Heights because there are not the proper homes to be found. As C. M. says, "If a newcomer got lost in the City of Good Neighbors, some night, he would have a heck of a time picking out his own home. There are so many houses alike that he would be more likely find himself entering the abode of one of those 'good neighbors'."

Anyway, his houses are going to be something different and will create upon North Dunton, North Vail streets, the best residence section of Arlington Heights.

Mr. Behrens has purchased an entire block on the north side for those homes. They will be erected in sets of four. The first set is being constructed at this time. Everyone will have a natural fire place and the most modern construction will be followed through out. They will be made to sell in the $10,000 class of homes.

Mr. Behrens does not claim that there will not be better homes in Arlington Heights, but he does claim that at present there is not another section within the city that has as many fine homes, modern in architecture as will the "homes that Behrens built."

Our reporter was rather interested in the above statements of Mr. Behrens and he rode about the City of Good Neighbors and learned for himself that this real estate man is right. If he does nothing else, Behrens will have changed the architectural standard of home building within this town.

A number of years ago, somebody erected the first Dutch colonial style house in Arlington Heights. It was a good design and his neighbors have not yet stopped copying it. A little came the Queen Ann style. Here is another design that at once became popular and fifty or more like house of that style are to be found here.

Mr. Behrens will have 16 styles upon that block. That ought to give a wide range of section for prospective home builders.

Concert in Lutheran Auditorium Dec. 13

Mr. Roscoe Reed one of our efficient instructors of piano will give a concert in the Lutheran Auditorium, Monday, Dec. 13, at 8 o'clock.

In this concert Mr. Reed introduces his pupil Miss Helen Kolling who will play a Liszt Chopin Recital. She is a gifted pianist and will play her program from memory.

Miss Louise, Willough, guest artist, from Chicago, will read several serious and humorous selections. Miss Willough is a teacher at the American Conservatory of music and comes highly recommended.

Mr. Clarence Richter, guest artist will sing. He has a beautiful tenor voice and is a real vocal artist, and has recently returned from Europe where he taught with great success, his specialty is voice training and he imparts to his pupils the excellent interpretation and fine style, which he displays in his own singing.

In this concert Mr. Reed promises a treat to lovers of good music.

Don't forget the date and place Lutheran Auditorium, Monday evening, Dec. 12.

You know winter is here when the California papers print pictures of folks in bathing (taken last summer) and compare them with photos of North Pole blizzards back East.

Christmas Seals

Roumania has tuberculosis seals too. It took Queen Marie's visit to Chicago to teach us that fact. The stamps are just new there, however, and what their success will be can not yet be determined. With the wonderful triumph that they have achieved in this country as an example, the Queen hopes for excellent results. They are sold all year round, not just at Christmas.

It is delightful to see that they bear their portrait of their royal patroness, our recent guest, The Roumanian Consulate has presented a sheet of the seals to the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, whose annual campaign for funds begins on Thanksgiving.

Co-operation Will Make Arlington Heights a Real Trading Center

The attention of the Herald has been called to the fact that there is no more opportune time to start a "Trade at Home" campaign in Arlington Heights than at this Christmas season. The stores of Arlington Heights were never in a better position to supply Christmas necessities than they are carrying stocks of Santa Claus merchandise that they have never before attempted. The State Street stores in Chicago are so crowded that Christmas shopping in the big city has become a burden.

Many of the local stores are recognizing their opportunity and are advertising Christmas this week carry a lot of Christmas news for Christmas buyers.

The Herald also believes that it is not alone the buying public who need to be won to the "trade at home" idea. The business men themselves, a few of them, are not practicing what they so often preach. Perhaps it is mere thoughtlessness upon their part, and if so they will gladly join the "trade at home cohorts."

Proper trade at home placards will be ready for free distribution to all merchants who pledge themselves to such principles. Watch the windows of the Arlington Heights stores.

Co-operation upon the part of everyone will mean more money for all of us and will impress upon the residents of Arlington Heights that their merchants believe in what they preach.

Suggestion No. 1: We have a moving picture theatre of our own. Why not throw placards advertising indoor theatres into the waste basket.

When you as a business man advise your patrons to go to a neighboring city to see the movies, you are likewise tempting that customer to do some of his buying in that same city—AND are doing it.

Kill Insurance Tax Law; State Suffers

The half century old Illinois law, imposing a tax on foreign insurance companies for doing business in Illinois, was declared invalid by the supreme court in an appeal filed by the Hanover Fire Insurance company. The case was brought to the supreme court when the insurance company brought suit against the late Patrick J. Carr, treasurer of Cook county, to prevent collection of the tax.

The law has been enforced since 1869 and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been collected under it, officials said.

METHODISTS CAMPAIGN FOR NEW CHURCH

The actual campaign is under way to raise $25,000 for a new Methodist church in Arlington Heights. A special bulletin last Sunday announced the campaign. The first meeting is tonight, Friday, Dec. 3. A supper is being served by the women of the church to all members of the congregation. This supper offers an opportunity to get everyone together for a good time, and a program which will increase the enthusiasm for the project.

After an old fashioned family supper, there will be a program including musical numbers by Dorothy Koppin and Mrs. Stewart Alden. Sidney Allen will lead in group singing.

Rev. Allan Billman is in charge of the program, and in addition to his own remarks, special speakers will be Rev. S. B. Edmondson, pastor of the Methodist Church of Park Ridge, who has recently gone through with a similar program to the one now under way here, and Mr. Rowe, the architect of the new building for Arlington Heights.

The Park Ridge congregation was about the size of the one in Arlington Heights when the building program was started. At the end of the first year in the new church, the building is crowded almost every night in the week.

Recently the men of the church invited all the boys of Park Ridge to a turkey dinner. Did the boys come? Yes, indeed—400 of them. And the men who paid the bill say that it was worth all its cost to watch the youngsters pass their plates for more.

All sorts of community organizations use the Park Ridge church for meetings and recreation. One thing that was not worked out well there is the stage in the recreational auditorium. The room there was designed more for a gymnasium than for a place to give entertainments.

The plans here are to make a stage on which the best of plays may be adequately presented. It is the plan to equip this stage with the most modern scenery and lighting effects.

This will give Arlington Heights an auditorium centrally located and freely open to the use of all organizations wishing to provide wholesome entertainment for the community. Rental to outside organizations will be based, not on the making of a profit, but upon service to the community. It is hoped that these facilities will encourage more good plays such as we have been having in recent months.

A large dining room will also be provided in which banquets may be served to the largest of the organizations in our village.

This room will also be used on Sundays for Sunday school work. Mr. Rowe is presenting a drawing of the exterior of the new church at this Friday's night's dinner. The painting colonial style is carried out and the plans is to have a large tower in the center that will add greatly to the attractiveness of Dunton street.

No money will be pledged at this first meeting. In fact, no money will be solicited until Jan. 12, which is the beginning of a week of solicitation.

The spirit of the Methodist congregation in planning this improvement is the spirit of community service. It is only this spirit of institution may serve the people of Arlington Heights better that the project was started. This spirit was further crystallized at last Sunday's meeting of the Board of Stewards in a resolution emphasizing that the building must be made to serve the community to the best advantage.

New Male Choir Sponsors Concert

The Immanuel Male Choir of the Lutheran church has engaged the LaSalle male quartet, the Swiss Bell Ringers who will appear in concert Thursday night, Dec. 9, at 8:15 in the new school building. The LaSalle quartet last year filled more concert engagements than any other quartet in Chicago. They are appearing in an entire new program including quartets, solos and duets, Swiss Bell Ringing, Scotch and Indian songs in costume, readings and pianofortes.

The receipts will be used towards the purchase of a piano by the local male choir. This is a new organization that was formed in October and is composed of 25 male voices. H. C. Hitzeman is president; Fred Linneman, vice president; Wm. Berndt, secretary; Henry Wolf, treasurer.

Cook County Board Asks for Bids on Criminal Court Bldg

Two important actions grew out of the County Board meeting on Nov. 29, which are of considerable interest to the citizens of Cook County.

The Board authorized the advertising for proposals for the new $7,500,000 Criminal Court Building and County Jail, which is being constructed at 26th Street and California avenue. The proposals are for general work, plumbing, steamfitting and electrical work and sealed bids must be in the hands of Henry A. Zender, Superintendent of Public Service not later than 1:00 p. m., Monday, Dec. 20th, 1926.

The Democratic members of the Board of County Commissioners led by Emmett Whealan refused to eliminate from the payroll of the County Treasurer's office sixty-five regular employees without an order from the Judges who have charge of scheduling the number of positions which shall be provided for by the County Board.

Earlier in the session County Treasurer Jacob Lindheimer, notified the board that 175 temporary employees were let out as of last night.

"One year ago the Judges passed an order designating the number of regular employees that should be carried on the County Treasurer's payroll," declared Commissioner Whealan, "and until the Judges issue an order removing these sixty-five men, I am opposed to eliminating these men so close to the Holidays."

The matter was sent back to the Judges' Committee on Employment.

New C. T. I. Nurse Takes Over Work in Arlington Heights

Miss Lyman, who is the relief nurse of the C. T. I., has spent the past two months in Arlington Heights doing some important work combating the epidemic of contagious diseases. She will take up her new work with Miss Palmer the supervision nurse, in the schools of western Cook County. She has many friends in Arlington Heights who are sorry to see her leave this charge. However she will not be far away and her new work will bring her here rather frequently.

Ben Helfers is Now Acting Postmaster

Uncle Sam has accepted the resignation of W. F. Meyer, Jr., as postmaster at Arlington Heights, effective December 1st, and his assistant, Ben Helfers, is acting as postmaster until Mr. Meyer's successor is appointed.

Mr. Meyer has been desirous of getting out of the postoffice for some time and his resignation, made some time ago, has been held up by the government until now. Notice was received by Mr. Meyer last week that his resignation had been accepted.

The people of Arlington Heights owe a good deal to Mr. Meyer. He has given the same loyal support to their interests in their dealings with Uncle Sam, as he has given in other affairs in which he had an interest. The present model office is due to Mr. Meyer's effort and while the public regret his departure they are mighty glad that he held the job long enough to get a real postoffice for Arlington Heights.

TO BEAUTIFY PRESERVES OF COOK COUNTY

Cook County Commissioner F. J. Penfield presented a resolution at the last meeting of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, which was adopted by the board, authorizing the president to work out a "Forest Preserve Beautiful."

Just before the Forest Preserve District meeting adjourned Commissioner Penfield arose and presented a prelude and then the resolution.

"In my short experience on the County Board I have noted the great efforts that have been made," he declared. "I have noted also how readily the citizens of Cook County will respond to such things as the building of the New Criminal Court and Jail and the extension of the hard roads. I have a resolution which I should like to have adopted which I believe is just as important and will extend the greatest thing in Cook County—the Forest Preserve District."

He then presented the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

"WHEREAS, in 1914 the citizens of Cook County elected to establish a forest preserve district, the boundaries of which are identical with the boundaries of Cook County, for the purpose of protecting and preserving a minimum of 35,000 acres of natural forests and lands connecting them in their natural condition, for the education and recreation of the public, and

"WHEREAS, approximately 31,000 of the 35,000 acres of land originally determined upon have been acquired as of Oct. 31, 1926 and

"WHEREAS, in common business judgment it is now the time to consider in greater detail a comprehensive and orderly plan for the maintenance and development of the forest preserve district for the use of the public, for which it has been acquired; therefore,

"BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners, that a committee of citizens and Board members be appointed by the President of the Board to give consideration to future plans for physical connections between all forest preserve lands for the maintenance of the forests in their natural condition, for reforestation, for the preservation and treatment of certain open spaces, and for the policing of the Forest Preserves; and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Committee be authorized to hold a competition for such general and detailed development plans among landscape gardeners, architects and others, if in the judgment of the Committee the preparation of a comprehensive plan can best be done in that way; and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this Committee be authorized to consider a comprehensive financial plan whereby adequate funds may be provided to carry out the above plan, for recommendation to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners."

Plans for receiving applications for houses, camps, and so forth, in the Forest Preserves District for the year 1927 were ordered prepared by the Forest Commission at its regular meeting on Nov. 29. President Cermak notified the Board that there were approximately 150 places in the Forest Preserves District including houses that were let out to tenants at small fees during the year and that all applications for such places for the year 1927 would be received at the Forest Preserve office in the County Building up to Dec. 15.

These places range from small frame houses on small parcels of ground to larger houses on property ranging from 1 to 20 acres. All applications should be addressed to Anton J. Cermak, President of the Cook County Forest Preserve Commission.

A CORRECTION

Nearly every M'dshipman of each of the four classes came to Chicago. The few who could not come were detained by sickness. Academic standing high or low made no difference. All were here to back the team. Buglers are selected only on account of ability to pass for that position.

—W. B. Beardsley.

Palatine Scout Troop Climbs Still Higher

That persistent troop in Palatine is bound to forge ahead, and is now leading by a considerable margin. The big rally comes off in February and certainly Palatine is making a strong bid for honors. Nearly every troop in the district is practicing on the various contests that will be pulled off in the rally, and a hot time for every troop that enters is assured.

Troop 6 of DesPlaines had a very impressive investiture service Monday evening under the direction of Mr. Marshall the Scoutmaster and Senior Patrol leader Robert Jordan, and surely the boys who took the oath were impressed with the seriousness of their obligations.

Special Night at Ridge Theatre
The famous police dog, Rin-Tin-Tin will appear in his latest picture, "Hero of the Snows," at the Ridge theatre, Park Ridge, Monday evening, Dec. 13, 1926. This special show is sponsored by the members of troops 1 and 3, Park Ridge Boy Scouts of America and the proceeds will be used to purchase fuel to heat the Scout room in the Grant Place school building and other needed equipment. There will also be a good comedy and other added features. Troop 1 of Park Ridge challenges any boy Scout in the Northwest Suburban Council to a "Fire by Friction" contest to be held at this show. Entries for this contest can be made with Mr. George F. Landane, the Scout Executive, Room 7-708 Center street, DesPlaines, Ill. A supper and pep meeting will be held this Thursday at the high school in DesPlaines for the Scoutmasters, their assistants and Senior patrol leaders. Plans for the new year will be discussed, and a vigorous campaign for new members and real work in Scouting will begin.

The standings of the troops are as follows:

Troop No.	Points
City	9
Arlington Heights	7
Barrington	10
DesPlaines	6
Park Ridge	1
Park Ridge	2
DesPlaines	5
Arlington Heights	8
Park Ridge	3

Leading Scout, Edward Prickett Troop 6 DesPlaines 85 points.

Arrangements will be made that any Scout coming to church or Sunday school starting next Sunday and every Sunday thereafter will be given certain number of points credit. Every Scout should watch for the man at the door and see that credit is given for attendance.

High School Scouts Want Fire and Drum Corps

Leading scouts in Troop 7 (high school troop) are Ed Chidley with 75 points and Herman McElhose and Sherman Pate with 70 points each. New Scouts registered are Walter Annam, Clifford Belle and Harry Garland. Herman McElhose will be the official bugler for the troop. There is some talk of organizing a bugle-fire-drum corps. If a conductor can be found who will volunteer his services, and drums procured the corps will be used.

Dr. Best will give demonstration of Artificial respiration at the next meeting. Wesley Knox will instruct in the use of tri-angular bandage and the roll bandages.

Miss Madge Gibbs Becomes Bride of Dr. Edmund Savage

Miss Madge Gibbs, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Gibbs was united in marriage to Dr. Edmund Savage at the home of her parents in Palatine Saturday afternoon, November 28, at 3 o'clock. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mae Gibbs, while the groom was attended by his brother, Arthur Savage. Rev. Stoffer, pastor of the Palatine M. E. church officiated. The ring ceremony was used. Miss Elizabeth Savage played the wedding march.

The bride was attired in white canton crepe and carried white sweet peas and roses. Her sister wore yellow canton crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

It was a simple home wedding, only the immediate members of the family being present. Following the ceremony supper was served by four friends of the bride, Misses Helen Swick and Edna Mair of Palatine and Misses Ruth and Faith Lorenzen of Arlington Heights. Miss Lindner was caterer.

A wedding party of four attended the theatre that evening. The bride and groom have taken up their residence in the Conrad Schroeder home on North Benton Street, adjacent to the R. M. Gibbs home.

Dr. Savage has been associated with Dr. Gibbs under the firm name of Gibbs & Savage the past four years. He is well known in Palatine and Arlington Heights and this union has the best wishes of Palatine and Arlington Heights friends.

NEED FOR "BEST" SECTION

This is not intended as a criticism, but if Arlington Heights is ever to become a model residential suburb it is time that somebody start a subdivision of luxury and that a strict zoning ordinance be passed immediately.

There will never be any $25,000 homes built in Arlington Heights until some assurance can be given to prospective builders that their property rights will be respected.

Arlington Heights has many fine homes, but they are too scattered. To show them off to prospective new residents, takes a trip of several miles.

Mr. Schaeffer with his newly acquired Cruickshank property has the opportunity of establishing such a section. He is building now one of the better class homes. Across the street equally attractive homes will be erected. Arlington Heights has the opportunity of having a really and truly "best" section.

Quick action is necessary to protect it.

AUCTION RECORD BROKEN AT SALE OF WM. E. MEIER

W. E. Meier, residing a mile north of Arlington Heights held last Monday what is probably the biggest auction sale of the season. It was big in the number of farm articles for sale, in the net receipts and in the number of people in attendance. The parking space available for autos was entirely inadequate and some of the purchasers had to leave their cars a quarter of a mile distant.

$6,000 Auction, All Cash
The sale amounted to $6,000, every cent of which was settled for in cash. There were no notes given by the buyers. This fact is a good indication of the financial condition of the farmers in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties. The buyers came from three counties, as far north as Prairie View; as far east as Glenview and Glencoe, as far south as Elmhurst and as far west as Elgin. Mr. Meier attributes the success of the sale to the extensive advertising that he conducted. He used special space in the Cook County Herald advertising columns. He covered the territory with both posters and cards. This activity bore fruit just as Mr. Meier said it would.

Cows Bring High Prices
Cows sold as high as $135 apiece. The prices brought in machinery were high. Mr. Meier's tools were in excellent condition and the bidding was spirited.

Auctioneer Frank Gahlbeck started the sale at 11 o'clock. By 6 o'clock it was completed and Clerk H. H. Schoppe was able within five minutes to announce the total amount of the sale. Mr. Meier can not say enough for the work of Mr. Gahlbeck and Mr. Schoppe. They have conducted double the number of sales this fall than they have at any previous season.

Women's Relief Corps Hold Past President's Night, November 19

Past President's Night of the Women's Relief Corps held Friday evening, Nov. 19, was a very lively affair, the attendance being unusually large. Most of all of the officers were filled by past presidents, the presidents chair being occupied for the evening by Mrs. Lily Schierding. Before the opening of the regular business meeting, Mrs. Margaret Paddock president for the second term was escorted to the dais and both presidents were presented with flowers. The business meeting was a lively one and much business was transacted at the close of which Mrs. Myra Foskett and Mrs. Mildred Sanborn sang an appropriate duet of welcome of which one verse was especially dedicated to each and every past president. After a very tasty lunch a Coo-Coo game was arranged by the entertainment committee which kept the company in a state of laughter after witnessing the acrobatic stunts, kicking, stage acting and their mimicry, which each member was compelled mercilessly to perform. Mrs. Elnora Foster won the prize for best performance. Each acting officer was presented with a little gift of remembrance. It was all-together a most delightful evening.

Among the Theatres

Ash, Jazz Rajah, to Shake 'Em Up in Next Week's Show

If there are any paralyzed feet in Chicago, bring 'em to the Oriental theatre next week, and Paul Ash and his gang of fun makers will make 'em shake! And step! Next week is "Jazzmania," week with Paul and his gang. The show is a lampoon at the fads of the age, and will be a subtle satire on the dancing madness, and a justification of it.

Louis McDermott, who stages the Ash productions in collaboration with Paul, has been working for weeks on this show, and will introduce half a dozen novel surprises. Included in the list of stars will be the Collegiate Harmony Four, Felicia Sorel, Sena Gluck, the Gluck Dancers, Peggy Bernier, as the best known of the stars, with a long list of newcomers added.

Last week's show, "Paul's Pick-ups," was such a sensational event, particularly on account of "The Rhapsody in Blue," which the orchestra presented first as a symphony, and which was then interpreted as a dance creation by Sena Gluck and Felicia Sorel with the Gluck Dancers, that Mr. Ash is considering its repetition at an early date.

Ash, Ex-Marine, Heads Committee to Entertain

Ex-Marine Gunner Sergeant Paul Ash, now Chicago's famous Rajah of Jazz, who even in the wildest flight of imagination would never be called "leatherneck," is the honorary chairman of the entertainment committee of Chicago business executives who are trying to brighten the lives of the 500 U. S. Marines who are daily risking their lives in guarding the U. S. mails from attack by bandits.

Mr. Ash, who during the war taught nearly a whole division how to operate a machine gun, was a famous bandsman before the war, and after the armistice, traded his Lewis machine gun for a baton and became a band leader again in the Marine Corps until he was honorably discharged.

"These men whom you see with 45 calibre Colts on their hips are just as dead today if a gangster shoots them as they would be if they were killed in a great war. We therefore owe them a duty. We should entertain them in their leisure hours. We should open our homes to them. I have been able to get a pair of theatre tickets for each Marine each week at all of the Balaban & Katz theatres, which brightens them up a bit, and I'd like to see a lot of other folks come forward and see that these men are treated right. If one of them gets killed on duty, Uncle Sam don't even provide a funeral bouquet of flowers for him."

The Rotary Clubs of Chicago are backing Mr. Ash's committee, and next week it is expected that an organization will be formed to care for the recreational needs of the men during the time they are on duty in Chicago.

Dumont Transplants High Traditions of Opera at Chicago

The Balaban and Katz Chicago theatre, wonder motion picture palace of the world, has an air of refinement that is without peer. Visitors from all over the world go back to their homes chanting the praises of Chicago's apex in entertainment.

There are numerous explanations for the Chicago theatre's supremacy in the motion picture world, and foremost of these is the powerful musical organization presided over by Chicago's Maestro of the Movie Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Adolphe Dumont, Musical Director of the Chicago theatre.

Mr. Dumont has proved conclusively that a motion picture theatre can adhere strictly to the highest standards in its music programs and still be exceedingly popular with the various kinds of folks whom it is necessary to please in order to keep 5,000 seats continuously occupied.

Mr. Dumont is a master of the modern operatic and symphonic theatres. He was formerly associated with Campanini, maestro of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. The type of music comprising the orchestra personnel under Mr. Dumont include such great artists as Eugene Dubois, concert master, formerly concert-master of the Metropolitan opera company; Leopold DeMare, principal French horn with the Chicago Symphony for many years; and Louis G. Camilleri, formerly first clarinet with Toscanini.

The Chicago theatre, undoubtedly its most representative theatre of its kind, has given orchestral programs more than keeping up with the most fastidious of audiences. The programs of the last few months range from the "1812" overture to "Tannhauser," and without a single cut in any of the numbers.

Mr. Dumont is continually developing his organization, and in keeping with the Balaban and Katz policy of giving the public the best possible in entertainment, he has outlined a campaign for the future that will eclipse anything and everything that has been accomplished with a theatre orchestra in the past.

Claire Windsor and Conrad Nagel Stars in Comedy-Romance

A comedy romance reciting the experiences of the American dough boy after the war had ended entitled "Tin Hats," featuring Conrad Nagel and Claire Windsor and having for supporting players Bert Roach, George Cooper and Tom O'Brien, comes to the Uptown for a week beginning Monday, Dec. 6.

"Tin Hats" is hilarious in its fun and sets a fast pace for comedy which it maintains throughout. It tells the story of three pals who enlisted in the war to make the world "safe for democracy" and then just as the battalion was to go over the top the end of the war came and the fun began. Most of the story is centered in Germany where the American Army of Occupation was supposed to be quartered and the comedy is obtained from the contacts the soldiers made with the German folks at home.

Bennie Krueger in a jazz show that promises to be the warmest he has ever put on in which he will be assisted by his orchestra and by a gang of syncopators is also on the program. In addition to Bennie and his show the "Barnyard Follies," a seasonal revue, the work of Paul O'Scand, in which dancers, musicians and a lot of pulchritude is all mixed to make a great stage offering.

Norshore Revives "Four Horsemen"

Rex Ingram's well remembered screen classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the great films ever produced by the industry, has returned in triumph in response to a flood of requests from patrons all over the country. This picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, and the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame, comes Sunday to the Norshore theatre. Valentino plays opposite Ella Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the popular Ibanez novel to the screen. Its first showing aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and other film centers, where it was characterized by the critics as one of the great pictures of all time.

June Mathis made the adaptation for this Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn.

"The Vagabond King" Continues Popularity at Great Northern

They, and that includes all producers, seldom put out shows like "The Vagabond King" now playing at The Great Northern. It is a breath from the Nineteenth Century of opera flavored with modern producing methods and the most magnificent scenery seen in many days. The music by Rudolf Friml, too, has a dash and lift which carries the march songs to tremendously applauded finales, while gentler themes are strictly in the mood.

For Russell Janney, its producer, it smacks of a triumph. For Dennis King who plays the Francois Villon role, hints of stardom and good parts for years to come, for this young man, from amongst a cast of unusual talent, distinguishes himself that point of rare public favor where a large audience roared his name again and again rendered unto him ovation after ovation.

These are two outstanding things of the night. In plot, the new opera tells of Francois Villon, the beggar-poet of France, and it is adapted from Justin Huntley McCarthy's "If I were King" in which E. H. Sothern starred years ago. And, to guess from the title, it tells of the beggar-poet who wished to be king, and who was made Grand Marshal of France, with the task of whipping the Burgundians and saving France for the descendants of those French people who were once saved by the Maid of Orleans, Saint Joan of Arc. His life is at stake, too, for the King tells him

The Heart of Kitrelle-John

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

WHEN Kitrelle-John wore her cloudy look wise men instantly became wiser and waker. Why not in presence of a girl baptized Kitrelle-John Kitrelle? An olive-brained human you see, to hold her betwixt two stubborn stocks, each intent on perpetuating its own name. It was bad enough to have the heir turn out an heiress, like wise a half-orphan. Her father had died before she was a month old, saving poor tenant folk trapped by fire. Ferry Kitrelle wasn't so bad for a name for a man—but with her grandfathers called John there was a pretty howdoo over harmonizing things without favoritism.

So as Kitrelle-John the small person had grown up, ugly, even scrawny, the while, then suddenly flowering into beauty so exotic it was breath-taking. Tall, slim, lithe, angular, she came, saw and conquered.

That is to say, before the era of the foolhardy Leland, whose other name was Douglas. Vital to her finger-tips, Kitrelle-John had to be doing something. Therefore she flirted—desperately yet with a certain reserve of discretion. Not a bit foolish—her hottest partners were the young fellows, who, when it came to courting, felt themselves out of it.

Leland, her match in everything, had no such hindrance, yet, oddly she did not appeal to him. Certainly nothing so alive had a right to be so deadly calm. It was his foolishness and her eyes forbade. He wondered a lot—was there anything save a man that could really wake her?

There was, he discovered—to his own confounding. A horse, black, thoroughbred, wind-swift, zany as a gnat, flecked with bloody foam from bit to haunch, was running away, mad with torture of bit and spur and lash. Reeling, plunging, doing all he might to unseat an iron rider, or else to crush him. Leland, strolling over grass a hundred yards from the lane, started full run to the man's help, but stopped short after three strides, half paralyzed.

Kitrelle-John raced down her own pasture, popped her Brown Betty handsomely over the tall hedge, right in front of the squealing black fury, half wheeled, caught the reins below the bit, and drew down the creature's head, gently but with a grip of iron, as she did it crying in a voice of steel to the rider:

"Drop that whip! Jump! Else you'll die as you deserve."

"D—d if I do!" the man panted, making to slash again. Instead he caught Kitrelle-John's crop full across his face, heard her cry, "D—d if you don't!" enforced with another cut. At that Leland rushed forward, no time for words—wrenched the fellow from saddle, restraining with difficulty an impulse to slam him down—hard.

"Unstable! Quick!" the girl cried—then as he obeyed, to the dismounted rider, "Leave! And don't come back. This lane is private property—free to me and beasts—but forbidden to brutes."

"I'll have the law on you, too," the man roared.

Leland flung off his coat, saying through set teeth: "Let the law of manhood settle it—right now," then to Kitrelle-John: "Ride away! Please!"

Kitrelle-John nodded, but smiled over her shoulder: "How I'd love to stay!" She did not go far away. Leland found her in wait a hundred yards past pasture when half an hour later he went victoriously from a most satisfying combat. She held out both hands to him, saying with a touch of shyness: "I waited, to ask pardon for—for all my hateful noes."

"Don't!" said Leland, holding the hands tight. "All that was providential—for my salvation—I knew it the minute I saw you over the hedge."

"I—don't understand," she began untruthfully.

Leland smiled: "Of course you don't. But give me a year to do it and I'll make you."

"I mean—about the providence," she said, flushing beautifully.

He shook his head at her, sighing: "Are you quite blind to surface indications? You're bound to know we were born for each other—why! our lands say it first, and everything else echoes it. Check-by-jowl they lie—and half our kin-folks are kin to each other. And the last one of 'em bent on matching us—maybe that's what made us so stiff-necked and selfish. I told myself you were perfect, except for lacking a heart—which my wife must have whatever else was lacking. And you, I reckon, didn't dream I could put up a fight—"

"You fought for me?" from Kitrelle-John very low.

Leland nodded. And a little bit for himself. Every time I landed on that scoundrel I'd tell myself it was right down mean—he'd really done me great service. Shrewdly me you had room in your heart for a suffering animal—so I thought there must also be room for a man."

"That reminds me," said Kitrelle-John. "I must buy that horse."

"Why?" Leland asked with a hovering smile.

"O! To make up to him for this morning," she answered.

Leland looked reproach. "Not a word about making up to me?" he said, "when the very best you can do is to marry me right off the reel."

Our Weekly Lesson In English

Words Often Misused

Don't say "there were no other alternatives." Say "there was no other alternative." Alternative is a choice of two things.

Don't say "modest" if you mean "bashful." One may be modest but not at all bashful or shy.

"Respectfully" means characterized by respect, "respectively" re-that, unless he wins the love of Lady Katherine, he must suffer death; but being Francois Villon, maker of beautiful couplets and doer of great deeds, he whips the Burgundians, saves his France, and wins the lady.

Government Has Full Power Over Patents

The house of representatives' committee of inquiry into the operation of the United States patent government is found it necessary to study the question of patents. Here is what they reported:

"There are many instances in which it is necessary or desirable that the government acquire the use or ownership of patents for use or ownership of patents for the aircraft or other requirements. The government is frequently charged with the infringement of patent rights by owners. The government may acquire a patent or the right to use it by purchase or by appropriation.

"In practice, the methods of acquiring patents, both by purchase and appropriation, do not appear satisfactory, either from the standpoint of the government or the patentee. If the government infringes or appropriates a patent, the only recourse of its owner is to prosecute a suit in the court of claims.

The expense and delay of such a proceeding frequently amounts to a substantial denial of the rights of the patentee."—Scientific American.

High Reasoning Power Possessed by Animals

Among the fishes the swordfish is the most fearless and dangerous. He kills purely from lust, many times without any thought of eating his dead victim. Many an innocent-looking bird in captivity is a murderer at heart and will show its bloodthirsty tendency if given a chance.

"Animals reason," says a noted authority on wild animals. "The higher wild animals possess and display the same fundamental passions and emotions that animate the human race. "In the most intelligent of the quadrupeds, birds and reptiles, the display of fear, courage, love, hate, pleasure, displeasure, confidence, suspicion, jealousy, pity, greed and generosity are plainly evident. Then why, one may ask, should not animals be given a legal trial whenever they transgress the laws of man?"—Exchange.

Monarch's Advisers

The privy council in England is the body of advisers of the sovereign. Its duties are as follows: To advise the king on affairs of state; to give formal sanction to orders in council by which the king, on advice of his ministers, expresses his pleasure with respect to various administrative matters; to perform ceremonial functions; to perform duties of administrative and judicial nature; to deal with appeals from dominions and colonial and Indian courts; to decide concerning petitions for extension of letters patent, copyright, etc., and to perform ecclesiastical jurisdiction. The members of this body have titles of right honorable and rank next to the Knights of the Garter. They are appointed by the sovereign, and their number is not limited. The presence of six members is sufficient to constitute a council.

Hair Tells Nationality

Scientists place a high value on hair as a guide to racial characteristics. The hairs having numerous variations of structure under the microscope, which can be clearly defined and classified like finger and other skin prints.

The hairs of a negro, a Chinese, an American Indian, and a Caucasian differ in quantity, color, structure, and growing habits, and so we are enabled to tell a man's nationality simply by studying his hair.

Youths Condemned to Seclusion in Boyhood

The boys of the Solomon Islands after a few years are taken from their mothers and they are not seen again by any woman until they reach manhood. In the meantime they are completely sequestered and dire punishment is threatened to any woman who tries to see them for any reason.

The origin and reason for this custom is not satisfactorily explained. During this period the boys are used for Bonito fishing and when they leave and return in the boats to that part of the island which is given over to them, they are religiously covered with fiber mats, which completely hide them, for fear that some prying female might try to spy on them.

There is really no danger, for the women believe that the spirits will see them and deal out some terrible punishment. They are so fearful of this fate that they all take to their huts at the time of the departure and return of the boys. This fishing is looked upon as a sacred ceremony or duty.

When a certain period has elapsed there is a big feast and the boys are led to the village with a great ceremony and in pomp and state they are revealed to the women. After this the boys take up their residence in the village in common with other members of the tribe.—Exchange.

Boys "Put One Over" on Unsuspecting Dad

One Saturday a small boy asked his father for a shilling to buy a rabbit. On being satisfied that a hutch was being fixed up in which to keep the rabbit, and being, also, a believer in the civilizing influence on boys of keeping pets, dad gave him the shilling.

The following Saturday a second youngster came on the same errand, and obtained a shilling. It happened to be a large family, and not wanting to display any favoritism, dad eventually gave a shilling to each of his children for the purchase of a rabbit.

One day he went out to see all these rabbits, and was surprised to find only one. He inquired of his children what they had done with their shillings. Each declared that he or she had bought a rabbit.

"Well, where are they?" he demanded.

"Why, dad," explained one of the youngsters, "it was the same rabbit; we bought it from each other."—London Tit-Bits.

Reverted to Savagery

Rush negroes are descendants of Guiana's runaway slaves who in 1712-13 joined in the border raids made by French marauders and decided to plunder the estates abandoned by their owners when they fled for refuge to Paramaribo. They retreated to the bush, founded settlements of their own and, augmented by fresh arrivals, proceeded to harass the plantation owners. Efforts were made to subdue them, but without success. In 1786, after 50 years of fighting, these self-enamored marauders finally signed a treaty of peace, whereby they were given their liberty and certain territory in the colony was assigned to them. Today they live like their ancestors in Africa, unclothed except for a loin cloth, dwelling in palm-leaf huts and apparently in as savage a state as they were 200 years ago.—Travel Magazine.

Fish Age Facts

How long do fish live? Maj. F. S. Fowler, in a lecture before the London Zoological society, gave some interesting data on a special study he has conducted on this subject.

An electric eel in the London zoo, it was reported, lived twelve years. A European catfish in the private aquarium of the duke of Bedford is fifty years old and shows little indication of weakness.

Other fish age figures given by Major Fowler, says a writer in Science Magazine, were: Carp, thirteen years; goldfish, twelve years; herring, four years; salmon, three years; bull frog, fifteen years; tree frog, fourteen years; female Spanish newt, eighteen years; and giant salamander, fifty-two years.

Common Superstitions

ASK any one of your intelligent friends if he is superstitious and in nine cases out of ten he will promptly deny the charge, and yet it gives him a feeling of foreboding when some one spills the salt at table, and he walks round rather than under the ladder leaning against the side of the house. Not that there is really anything in the superstition of ill luck coming to the one who walks under a ladder, but he just doesn't care to take unnecessary chances.

In Indiana, says one of the local newspapers, says, there are those who carry a rabbit's foot for good luck, but around the particular village indicated the buckeye is preferred. In addition to warding off ill luck it is a sure cure for infected tonsils and rheumatism. At one of the village luncheon clubs an investigation showed that out of the eighty members present at one meeting, seventy-three had a buckeye in their pockets. It goes without saying that if that many intelligent citizens have for twenty years been basing their good luck upon the efficiency of the buckeye, there must be something to it.

I have myself always held that I have no superstitions, and yet I hate to turn back, no matter for what reason, when I have started upon any journey or project; and I manage usually to sit down in order that the ill luck impending may be averted. A little shudder always runs over me when I enter a house which has stood empty for a time, especially if my entrance is at night.

There were thirteen at table at a dinner party I attended four or five years ago. The fact was noticed by no one until the party was about to break up. Some of the guests laughed, some of them were indifferent, but not a few looked serious.

"It's terrible," one woman with the degree of doctor of philosophy asserted. "Some one will go during the year."

They are still all alive, but she refers to the incident today as a very dangerous experiment to try.

It is hard to say where superstitions come from. Possibly they are a part of the great mystery of life. We know little of what it is all about, or where we come from and where we are going. Perhaps they are an inheritance from our far-away savage ancestors, who knew little of cause and effect and were unable to explain satisfactorily the phenomena of nature. Anyway we all have them.

Flashy Clothes Worn in Shakespeare's Time

The gallants of Shakespeare's time vied with the belles in their love of dress. The men favored red, blue or green velvet crested with gold. Their hair they clipped, closely, but cultivated their beards, which invariably were trimmed to a point, and mustaches were in vogue.

In the early Tudor period broad-toed shoes, which in slashes and puffs vied with the doublets worn, were much in favor, and in the matter of head-dresses the women shared with the men the use of the alighted milan bonnets of varied and vivid colors, says Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, editor of the Standard dictionary. Wives were in favor with the women and, perched high upon maidenly or matronly head, might be seen fair-haired wigs of huge proportions—red being the favorite hue, presumably in honor of her majesty, the virgin queen.

Small wonder, then, that occasional sly peeps at the tiny looking-glass that dangled from the belt were necessary to see that this ornate structure was properly set in place. Tradition has it that this practice the language owes the common expression, "Is my hat on straight?"

Franklin as America's First "Song Plugger"

America's original "song plugger" and music publisher was none other than Benjamin Franklin. Furthermore, the songs were his own compositions, for the statesman, inventor, printer, diplomat, philosopher and educator also was a composer and all-around musician. History has it that the allegro-tempo drinking song, "Paper," words and music of which were written by him in the hall-fellow-well-met atmosphere of the Junto clubrooms, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. On many an evening the savorous voice of Franklin was heard in chorus with his friends. He was an orthodox believer in correct tempo in music and it is not hard to imagine him tapping time on the table of the clubroom. He not only wrote songs, but set them into type and proceeded to hawk them through the streets, thus proving himself a pioneer sales promoter. Franklin developed the lamontian or glossy chord. He also was a talented performer on the harp, guitar and violin.

Nutmeg Production

The nutmeg is the pit or kernel of a fruit which, when ripe, looks something like a small peach. The pulp of this fruit is quite unpleasant to the taste. Inside the pulp is a red flesh known as mace—one of the most popular spices known to modern cookery. When you taste a dish flavored with mace you will know that you are eating what was once the soft red covering of a nutmeg. Nutmeg trees properly located and well cared for are remarkably prolific. In one year a single tree has been known to produce more than 2,000 nutmegs. The nutmeg blossom is white, bell shaped, and as fragrant as it is beautiful.

The more education, the more is concealed under a veneer. The polish, but how about the structure is considerable overlaying of glass itself? A lot of inferior material in modern society.

Hearing on Storm Sewer Laid Over

Public hearing on the storm sewer was adjourned at the meeting of the Board of Local Improvements, Tuesday evening until the regular meeting of the Village Council Feb. 7, 1927.

General objections was the tone of the meeting as is customary at Public Hearings. About fifty of the two hundred that received notices were present with Mayor H. M. McCullen, Trustees Ladendorff, Scalbom, Voelk, Coons, Bartling, Lamberg, Clerk Meng and Engineer Paul E. Green in their seats. Also the hearing on the Dredging and deepening of the river and been held previously without opposition many in attendance seemed unaware of the fact and labored under the delusion that the board of local improvements was planning on the storm water sewer without figuring on the outlet.

While the majority present represented those unfavorable to the project but few voiced their disapproval in a logical manner from the floor.

Arthur Palmgren of the Palmgren nurseries expressed his favor in the matter as also did LeRoy Koetz. The clerk read a communication from the Golf Trust representing the Glen Acres Golf Club petitioning the board for an extension of the sewer to benefit its properties.

A. E. Nelson of the Nelson Nurseries spoke for a short delay in the matter. Following the expressions from the public the president and board went into session for the action upon the resolution. Trustees Coons moved that action be postponed in the matter until such time as the board should be fully satisfied that the plans for deepening the river would cover all requisites for the storm water sewer. Trustees Ladendorff voicing the same opinion it was voted to adjourn the meeting until Feb. 7.

Charles A. Bartling voiced a protest against the side walk fronting his property on Glenview Avenue. He was assured by Engineer Green that the walk would be related at the expense of the engineer's office.

THE MILLIONAIRE'S SECRET

To be a millionaire, a man must not only get rich; he must be able to stay rich. A certain well-known millionaire, when asked how he stayed rich, said: "I invest my money only in sound, established companies."

That man has learned a valuable secret. But a man's money, however much he has, is never worth so much to him as his mind, his intelligence.

Has it ever occurred to you that you should invest your intelligence just as carefully as you invest your money?

Prize Holstein Comes to Lake Co.; Sells for $7,100

Wisconsin's national grand champion Holstein bull—Sir Fobes Ormsby Hengerveld—will show under Illinois colors next year, R. V. Rasmussen, Deerfield, Ill., purchasing the champion for $7,100 during the national Holstein sale at Waukesha. The price was not up to expectations, for breeders freely predicted the 4-year-old Rasmussen had lost interest. His additional $100 bid brought final bang of the rubber hose from the Auctioneer Bob Haeger and the Wisconsin champion went to another state.

Receive Word from Doctor MacLean, 87

This office received this week a copy of the weekly newspaper at Hartford, Mich., in which mention is made of Dr. MacLean, who celebrated his 87th birthday the other day. Judging from the tone of the item the doctor is the same jolly fellow as always. Here is what a brother newspaper man says of him:
Dr. J. McLean celebrated his 87th birthday Sunday. He is a familiar figure about town every day, is still one of the most active members of the local Masonic fraternity and is a daily caller at The Day Spring office where he reads the day's newspaper without glasses. Few young men are as keenly interested in world events or enjoy life more than does this veteran physician, whose friends are limited only to the circle of his acquaintance.

Members of the Lake County board are said to feel much the same about the matter. They believe that under the law they should be empowered to regulate the road houses as well as the dance halls and it is indicated that they may decide to pass a resolution similar to that in Winnebago county.

County Board Members Favor New Regulation

Several members of the Lake County board of supervisors are viewing with considerable approval the attitude of the Winnebago county board of supervisors who have made a demand that the Illinois legislature pass a drastic road house and dance hall law. At present there is no law which regulates road houses, although there is a law which provides for the licensing of dance halls.

The Winnebago county board feels, it is said, that a drastic law which incorporates both road

CURRENT EVENTS OF DAILY PRESS

At Columbus, Ga., Alfred O. Blackmar, 96, and his wife, 95, formerly Mary Ann Blood of Charleston, Mass., celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary last Friday in their home. In the receiving line was Mrs. John L. Peabody, 92, a surviving bridesmaid. 51 members of the family and 1,000 guests were present. Mr. Blackmar gave his wife a recipe for old age "First of all select some long lived ancestors, and don't pay too much attention to your youth; let it take care of itself."

Kane county farm bureau raises the dues of members. Ignoring the fact that the board of supervisors at their September meeting rescinded the $2,000 Kane county farm bureau appropriation, the board of officials declared they would "carry on" appropriation or no appropriation. This in part they plan to do by raising membership fees from $10 to $15.

Catania, Sicily. - Gales that sweep the snow capped smoking peak of Mount Etna are to be forced to light the Mediterranean and help make it safe for navigators at night. The winds are to generate power for a gigantic searchlight.

New York. - Sports are rich and research is poor in American colleges, Albert J. Beveridge notes. "In comparison to the sums spent upon instruction and athletics," he says, "the amount devoted to learning itself is pitifully small. Teachers are still underpaid, but the men who do original first hand historical investigation actually impoverish themselves."

Bicycles have not yet gone the way of the chariot of Jehu, but they seem to be on the way out. So implies a government report, showing that the numbers manufactured declined from 480,000 in 1923 to 287,000 in 1925, a decrease of 40.1 per cent in two years, though the number of factories remained stationary at 25. Workmen in those factories declined in number from 3,120 to 1,850, and the value of the products shrank from $16,708,207 to $11,281,314 a fall of 32.5 per cent.

For the motorcycle the report also goes down grade. The number of machines was reduced from 41,894 in 1923 to 39,340 in 1925, their value fell from $10,024,500 to $8,873,917 the workmen decreased from 3454 to 2,392 and the number of plants declined from 14 to 10.

WINDY WULFF SAYS:

A lady was attired in the height of fashion, and as she was strutting through the village, contempt for her lowly surroundings was written on every line—and there were many—on her face. Suddenly she caught sight of a small boy, and she stiffened with anger. The boy was a ragamuffin, and he was carrying a bird's nest full of eggs. "You're a very bad boy!" she snapped without hesitation. "A very bad boy! How could you rob the nest?" she continued. "No doubt the poor mother bird is still grieving over her loss." "Not she, mum!" came the sharp reply. "She's part of you! hat!" Then the lady proceeded rather more quickly on her way.

At Dawning—I love to hear the alarm clock in the morning. I am unable to understand those who cannot bear the sound of it, and who each morning are impelled anew to hurl it out of the window or smother it under the bedclothes—just to sleep another half hour. For me, the alarm clock is the symbol of life; it is a signal that the great city reawakens, that a new day begins, that streets and houses are filled again with pulsating existence.

According to an after-dinner speaker, a banquet is an affair where a speaker eats a lot of food he doesn't want and then proceeds to talk about something he doesn't understand to a crowd of people who don't want to hear him.

Five ways to not begin a joke—1. "The funniest thing about this is that it's actually true." 2. "I know you'd just scream your head off at this one if I could only tell it in dialect. It isn't at all funny otherwise." 3. "You won't get the point of this one unless you've been to Peoria, Ill., and seen the fellow that takes up the collection in the Methodist church there." 4. "Al Jolson told this one. He's got a way with him, that boy. It ain't so much what he says as the way he says it." 5. "I heard this one in the wash-room on a train going to Philly. Perhaps it ain't just the sort I oughta spring in mixed company."

Asked to write an essay on Quakers, a little girl wrote: "Quakers are very meek people, who never fight and never answer back. My father is a Quaker, but my mother is not." The inquisitive fellow asks a few questions: "You have seen hundreds of white horses—why have you never seen a white colt?" "Why does a horse eat grass backward and a cow forward?" "Why does a hop vine twice in the right and a pea vine to the left?" "Why does a horse when staked out by a rope unwind the rope, while a cow winds it up in kinks?" "And why does a dog turn around three times before lying down?"

Don't circulate scandal some of it will stick to you. "You're a regular little tease," said John. "Still," pouted the modern girl, "I'm really not as bad as I'm painted."

LIONS GO ONE BETTER EACH LADIES NIGHT

The Arlington Heights Lions entertained their ladies Tuesday night. It was voted by the ladies as the best entertainment given so far. Each succeeding "ladies night" appears to be a little better than the previous one. The committee in charge each succeeding months seems to go their predecessors one better.

President Behrens, when asked how it was going to end, replied, "I should worry as long as the committees hold out."

The entertainer Tuesday evening was Tom Corvine, called the Polyphonic imitator of Kentucky. He kept the audience in repeated gales of laughter. His talk was not all nonsense. He found even fun in the serious things of life.

His imitations of animals, people and even inanimate things of life were remarkable and realistic. Figuratively speaking, he held his audience in the hollow of his hand. By the mere lifting of his hand, or voice, they would go into laughter.

Yet there were many lessons to be derived, and we understand an effort is being made to "book him" for further appearances in Arlington Heights.

Library Presented with Bulletin Board

Mr. Al Jasper, Superintendent of the E. W. A. Rowles plant recently made and presented to the community library a fine bulletin board half of which is a tack board for typewritten notices and the other half is blackboard for handwritten notices. This blackboard will be used to advertise the library and its latest acquisitions.

New Orleans Creole Proud and Clannish

The ire of many a "Creole" has been provoked because the innocent tourist thinks the word means "of colored blood," says the Piedmont East Oregonian.

"Creole," the native Orleanian will tell you, means "of French and Spanish." The Creole is one who is born away from his country—whatever that country may be. The New Orleans Creole is considered the city's finest product. The women are lovely. The men are brave. They have charming manners. They are exclusive. They are clannish. They have their own language, their own society, and their own customs.

The New Orleans Creole speaks a pure French. The reason "Creole" has been misunderstood is because their slaves spoke a Creole dialect, bearing about the same relation to pure French as the southern negro talk does to English purely spoken. Then, there was the Acadian French, or "Cajean" French, as spoken in the outlying districts of Louisiana. And "Gumbo" French—that means simply French incorrectly spoken.

English Choir Sings to Old Hardy-Gurdy

Barrel organs or hardy-gurdies were used in English churches in the early eighteenth century to support the choir. The only elaborate specimen surviving today, and still in use, is to be found in the parish church of Trottscliffe, near Wrotham, in Kent.

These barrel organs were quite as popular in rural churches that could not afford the luxury of an organ as were the music boxes of the period in European drawing rooms. Falling either an organ or a hardy-gurdy, village church choirs usually relied on a two or three-piece orchestra for Sunday services. These orchestras were placed in the gallery over the entrance.

Trottscliffe's barrel organ must have been one of the finest in its hey-day, for it has a repertoire of sixty hymn tunes. It has recently been repaired and its handle is still turned by the sexton for Sunday services and weddings. The tone of this ancient instrument is unusually sweet.

Accounts for Fools' Day

But for the changing of the calendar in 1564, April 1 might never have become All Fools' day. Several explanations have been offered as to the fixing of April 1 as the date for perpetrating practical jokes, but the changed calendar appears to be most probable. In 1564 New Year's day was shifted from March 25 to January 1. Before the alteration, the New Year festivities lasted eight days, ending on April 1. This final day was one set apart for paying visits and making gifts. When the alteration was made, middle-headed folk became confused and were easy prey for the sophisticated, who sent them out on fools' errands, making calls on the discarded celebration. Thus the custom became the seed from which April Fool sprang.—New York Times.

Old Rain-Making Device

As a pendant to the reaction of plants to weather the curious Seventeenth century belief in the weather's reaction to plants might be mentioned. Then it was the common practice to set fire to growing ferns in the belief that rain would follow.

Such implicit faith was placed in this expedient that when Charles I arranged to visit Staffordshire, the earl of Pembroke and Montgomery wrote to the high sheriff of the county commanding him to stop the burning of ferns as his majesty was "desirous that the country and himself should enjoy fair weather as long as he remains in these parts."

In this custom, by the way, the Devonshire practice of "firing the bracken" took its rise.—London Mail.

Typewriting to Music

In a certain college in London, England, girls learn typewriting to the accompaniment of fox trots and military marches. If a girl has a good sense of rhythm, this system hastens the early stages of training in a remarkable way. Gramophone records are used, and pupils first type words of three letters to a military march in four-four time, one letter to a beat and the space movement to the fourth. Progress is then made in words of different lengths, until finally whole sentences are typed. When speed increases, students type two letters to each beat. The idea behind this system is that regular rhythmic movements are less tiring than irregular ones, which waste the worker's energy.

Did Adam Die With Gout?

In the library at the Herald's college, London, England, is a queer Sixteenth century document, the history of which is unknown. It professes to trace the pedigree of the early Saxon kings right back to Adam and Eve among the names of those appearing in the genealogy being our Lord, Alexander and Nebuchadnezzar. It contains some beautifully executed and well-preserved pen and ink drawings of subjects which include the fall, the building of the tower of Babel, and the Ark. Adam is stated to have died from "gout" and to have been buried at Hebron. The document has been in the possession of the Herald's college for 200 years.

New Druggist Shows Fault in Village Future

We recently had occasion to visit that part of town across Irving Park Boulevard from the village limits of Bensenville and consequently stepped into the business place of Mr. Dahl. We were surprised to find a first class druggist operating a drug store so close to our very door. This is something Bensenville has always been saying she needed. This store is in the territory that without doubt will be annexed to the village as soon as the residents decide that they want the comforts of a modern city. We have said much about patronizing home merchants and we also believe that the spirit of co-operation should extend to our neighbors who will sometime be one of us. We can't figure that we can ever annex Chicago to Bensenville so let us begin to create a friendly, neighborly business relation between ourselves and our surrounding subdivisions which will make Bensenville the "City Beautiful" that we all desire to see her made. Get acquainted with and support those who have decided that Bensenville will soon be an excellent place to reside as well as an ideal place to operate a business. It takes nerve and a spirit of belief in the fairness of a town's residents to get a business man of experience to open a business in a small town. He naturally looks into the future expecting, that by fair treatment he may enjoy a fair business from the people whom he has decided to serve. We surely need these business men and they need our support. Bensenville residents will be mutually benefited if they will only get acquainted with their home town business men and at least let them give their prices before going anywhere else to spend their money.

Houses on Empty Lots is the Need of Bensenville

Many improvements have been put in in Bensenville in the last three years and many more are being proposed. These are all needed to make our town an attractive place, one that will attract the home buyer who wishes to get away from the city's high rent proposition. While most of the property owners are in favor of necessary improvements we sometimes hear it said that Mr. So and So is being pretty hard by these improvements because he holds so many lots. When we hear this said it reminds us of the man in South Dakota who put up two big windmills near his barn, but afterwards had to take one of them down on account of not getting wind enough to operate both mills. An occupied house on every lot is what will boost our town and if we owned five lots and could only afford to improve and build on two we believe we would follow the idea of the South Dakota farmer and dispose of the rest. What Bensenville needs today is more property value and the vacant lot does not increase in value as it would if sold to a home builder. More homes are needed and if any think they have more vacant lots than they can afford improvements on, why not boost the town and at the same time improve the value of their other properties by selling some of their vacant lots to prospective home builders. It is not our intent to dictate to anyone how much property they should hold; but we do not believe that vacant lots will improve our town to the extent that these same lots with homes built on would. Let us double our property value in the present village limits. How? By getting a home on every lot. Then let us see if there is a single word said against modern improvements.

Motor Cycle Cop for Addison Twp.

Addison township will have a highway motor police beginning Dec. 6, 1926 whose territory will include Bensenville. There are several aspirants for the job, two from our village. We are informed that our former ice man Mr. Glenn Swails has applied for the position and on account of having held a position in a sheriff's office in Wisconsin 4 1/2 years seems to be the favorite in this locality. It is sure cheering news to know that we are to have an officer to regulate traffic in this locality. It has been talked of long enough and we are sure the necessity of it was what has brought it about. No longer will we have to listen to the young blood of other places brag that there was no danger of being arrested in the vicinity of Bensenville for there is no one there with authority to stop any one. While the newly appointed officer will have a district to cover in Addison township Bensenville is included in that district and we know they are going to curb this reckless driving whether the offender is from Bensenville or some other place so our advice to all is "watch your step" especially when you "step on the gas."

Maggie's Two Feet

"It's absurd," said Maggie's right foot. "I think it is really absurd."

"Perfectly absurd," said Maggie's left foot.

"I don't know why she treats us as she does," said Maggie's right foot.

"I don't understand it," said Maggie's left foot.

"You'd think she was ashamed of us," said Maggie's right foot.

"You'd almost think that," agreed Maggie's left foot.

"And yet we're very nice," said Maggie's right foot.

"I don't see anything the matter with us," said Maggie's left foot.

"If we were horribly big it might be different," said Maggie's right foot.

"Or of an ugly shape," said Maggie's left foot.

"If I caused her pain it might be different," said Maggie's right foot.

"Or if I did more than itch just a wee scrap when it's going to rain," said Maggie's left foot, "it would be different."

"But neither of us causes her any trouble whatever," said Maggie's right foot.

"None at all," said Maggie's left foot.

"And think of all we do for her!" said Maggie's right foot.

"Of course," said Maggie's left foot.

"Why, she would never get to school or home for lunch or out to play, or to pick the apples on the old apple tree in the yard if it weren't for me," said Maggie's right foot.

"And for me," said Maggie's left foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's right foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's left foot.

"If it weren't for me," said Maggie's right foot, "she wouldn't be able to go down the garden path and pick the flowers."

"And for me," said Maggie's left foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's right foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's left foot.

"If it weren't for me," said Maggie's right foot, "she wouldn't be able to go up street and have a dish of ice cream when she's hot."

"And for me," said Maggie's left foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's right foot.

"And for you," agreed Maggie's left foot.

"Yet she spoke as if we were not a part of her," said Maggie's right foot.

"That's the way she spoke," said Maggie's left foot.

"She said that she wasn't in the least bit cold," said Maggie's right foot, "not in the least scrap cold."

"But that only her feet were cold—that she wasn't cold in the least," said Maggie's left foot.

"Just as though we didn't actually belong to her and weren't a part of her!" said Maggie's right foot.

"Too bad," said Maggie's left foot.

"Too bad," agreed Maggie's right foot.

"Just then the Maggie, who had been taking a nap, woke up.

Her feet, it seemed, had been half-asleep, too. At least, they felt all prickly and funny and she had to wake them up properly. She didn't know that her right foot and her left foot had been having this conversation.

Perhaps she will be told about it though. Some one said that the Breeze Brothers were going to tell her just what happened so she will speak differently of her feet in the future.

WHERE SANTA GOES AFTER CHRISTMAS

WHERE SANTA GOES AFTER CHRISTMAS

Reporter Interviews Him to Discover Why He Shows Up Only on Christmas Eve.

CATCHES HIM AT WORK

Reindeer Stuff Found to Be Merely a Blind for His Real Job.

By DWIGHT S. ANDERSON

Where does Santa Claus hide after Christmas?

Unless this genial, bewhiskered old gentleman can show a good reason for appearing in public but once a year, and then retiring for twelve months into seclusion, he is a fake philanthropist.

In some quarters it is doubted whether he personally delivers all the packages that are found at the fireplace Christmas morning; in others it has even been whispered that he is so lazy he gets the inmates of a Home for Rich Old Uncles to lick the Christmas Seals he uses to decorate bundles. Reindeer driving once a year gives him quite a thrill, but as for hard work at times when newspapers consider him poor "copy"—Santa Claus simply doesn't deliver the goods.

So the reporter burst into Santa's office one day. "Here, Santa," he said, "is what people are saying about you. How come?"

"The room was crowded with children, most of whom were naked to the waist. Two nurses were weighing a boy on a pair of scales in a corner, writing down his weight as well as height on a chart. Santa himself stood in the center of the room bawling the job.

Meets Santa Face to Face

"Make it snappy," breezed Santa with one of those world-wide grins of his. "I've got twenty more kids to examine before five o'clock."

"Where do you go after Christmas?" the reporter asked.

"Everywhere. Just now I am examining these children for signs of undernourishment or incipient tuberculosis. That's part of what I do all the year round. On top of that, I conduct open-air schools in some places, support preventoria in others, where children can go and live in the open air and sunshine. I am busy almost everywhere with health education in the public schools. The best gift I give is health, and I give it, not only at Christmas time, but all the year round."

"Where do you get the money to do all this?" asked the reporter.

"The people give it to me when they buy Christmas Seals, my boy. A penny at a time the money rolls in. Last year I had the tidy sum of $4,750,000 to expend in the United States. I always see to it that practically all the money given me when people buy my seals stays in their state and is spent to fight tuberculosis in their own community."

"Santa!" cried the reporter, "you've been selling Christmas Seals for almost twenty years. Have you accomplished anything?"

"I've helped cut the death rate from tuberculosis in half during that time," answered Santa, "and besides that, there are more than 600 tuberculosis sanatoriums in the country now, and there were only two or three when I started. Confidentially—and here he lowered his voice so the children could not hear him, "the big reason I call on all the boys and girls on Christmas Eve is to take a peek into their homes while they are asleep and see how my health work is coming along."

Where He Gets the Money

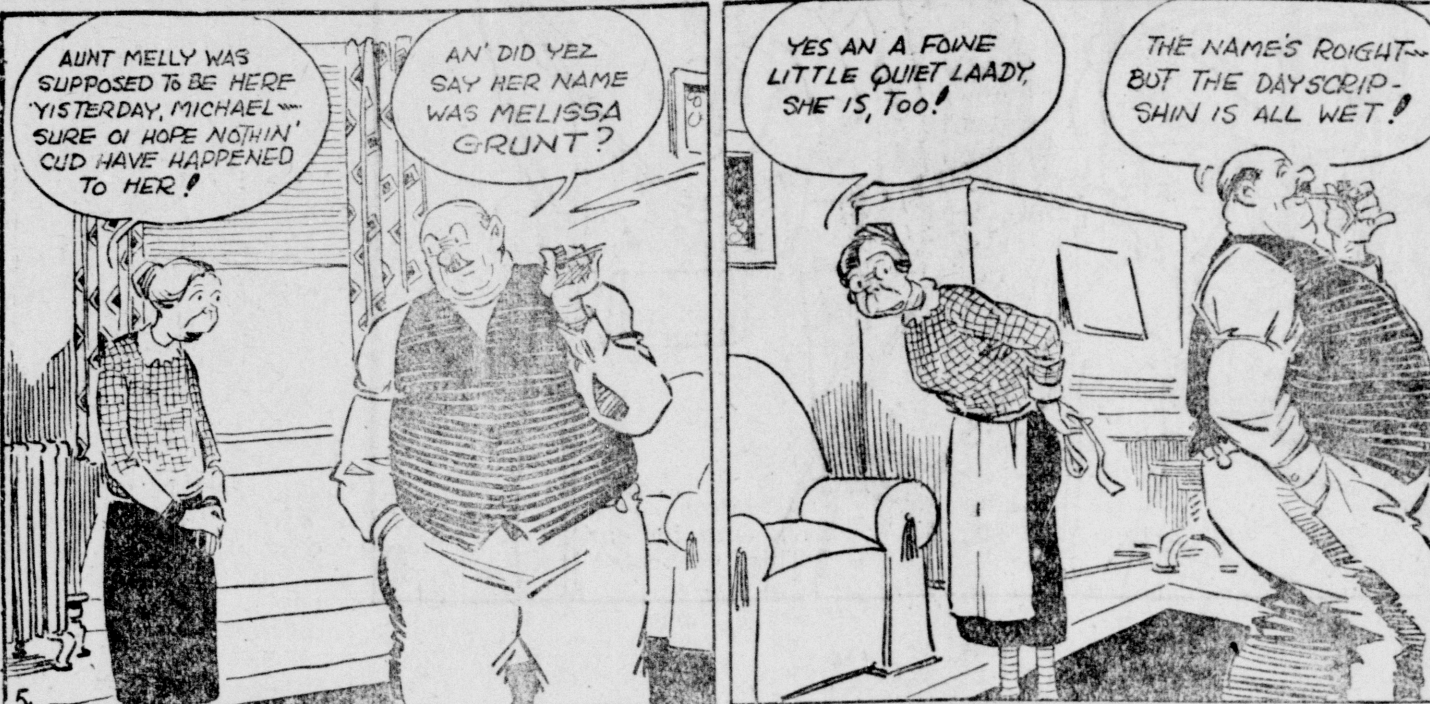

"Do you collect all this money yourself?" the reporter asked.

"Oh, no, no, no, that would be impossible. I can't be everywhere. Plenty of men and women volunteer to collect this money for me—otherwise so huge a sum could never be raised a penny at a time. And almost everybody in the country knows by now that 'Christmas Seals Fight Tuberculosis.'"

FAMOUS FORTS IN U.S. HISTORY

A Fort That Was Once a Territorial Capital

Among the military posts established by the federal government, Fort Whipple in Arizona is one of the few that can boast of having been a center of civil as well as military government and that it once served the state in which it stands as a territorial capital. It was built in 1833 near Granite Creek by Maj. E. B. Willis of Col. James H. Carleton's famous "California Column" and it was established there to help hold the Southwest for the Union after Carleton had driven the Confederates out. It was named in honor of Brig. Gen. Amiel Weeks Whipple, who in his youthful military career had explored a part of the wilderness of Arizona before the Civil war and who lost his life at the battle of Chancellorsville.

In January, 1864, John N. Goodwin, governor of the newly created territory of Arizona, arrived at Fort Whipple and immediately designated it as the temporary capital. In May the fort was moved about 20 miles southwest to its present location and by July there had sprung up near it a thriving little town which was named Prescott in honor of the distinguished historian. During the following years there was a spirited rivalry between Prescott and Tucson for the honor of being capital of Arizona. Eventually both lost out to Phoenix, but for a long time Prescott seemed to have the better claim, partly because of its nearness to Fort Whipple, the center of military affairs in the territory.

In 1869 Fort Whipple was made headquarters of the military department of Arizona and southern California and there in 1872 came Gen. George Crook to subdue the hostile Apaches who had terrorized the Southwest from the days of the earliest white occupancy. Fort Whipple at that time was described by one of Crook's officers as "a ramshackle, tumble-down palisade of unmarked pine logs heven from the adjacent forest slopes, which was supposed to 'command' something—exactly what it is not known for it was so dilapidated that every time the wind blew we were afraid it was doomed."

Unimpressive as the old fort was, however, it deserves a place in history if for no other reason than that it was the base of operations of Crook's campaigns against the Apaches, as brilliant an achievement as any in the annals of the American army, which brought a greater period of peace to the harassed border than it had known for centuries. Today Fort Whipple is only one of a number of posts, which the War department maintains in the West, whose glory lies in the past when the red man rode the war trail against the whites.

THEY SHOWED HOW A CHEYENNE WARRIOR CAN DIE

In the summer of 1890 Head Chief and Young Mule, two young Northern Cheyenne Indians on the Lane Deer reservation in Montana, were accused of the murder of a boy named Hugh Boyle. When the authorities demanded that their tribesmen surrender the two braves, they refused. The medicine man had anointed them in preparation for their ride to death.

Then, singing their death songs, Head Chief and Young Mule dashed forward, two men against more than a hundred. Under the hail of bullets that greeted them Young Mule went down. But Head Chief seemed to bear a charmed life. He rode unscathed past the line of soldiers and police firing point-blank at him until he was out of range. Then he turned and deliberately rode back, and this time a bullet found its mark.

Later it was learned that Young Mule had had no part in killing Boyle, but a mistaken sense of honor prevented his trying to prove his innocence.

Origin of Pink Lemonade

Nothing less than scandalous is the charge that a pair of pink tights gave the world its first tub of circus lemonade. Tossing in the tights does give a plausible color to this gossip, but to swallow so sordid a slander is also to stomach belief that "property" lemons were used in the good old days. Away with this ghoulish business! Circus lemonade is too venerable an institution to be overthrown by stirring up the ghosts of old tubs. Tartaric acid, aniline dye and water from the sea lion's tank though it may have been, there is no beverage so in character with the pleasant mimicry of circus day—a drink of satisfying pretense made for a world of make-believe—than the Business.

Good Deal of Difference

An Irishman, married to a Scotch woman, took a woman friend of the family out to lunch. Knowing that his wife was not of a jealous disposition, he mentioned the matter to her when he came home that evening. To his surprise she became angry. "But you sometimes go out to lunch with men who are your friends," protested the husband, "and I don't object. Now what is the difference between the two cases?" "The difference," snapped the wife, "is in the bill. In the one case you pay it; in the other case I save it."

The Freezing Point

"Perhaps it is best after all," remarked the rejected suitor as he lingered in the hall. "A man of twenty-five would soon tire of a wife who hovered round the thirty-two mark."

"Why, Mr. Ardent," said the woman in the case, "how very unalluring of you to insinuate that I am thirty-two."

"Well, perhaps you are not," he replied, "but it certainly struck me that you were somewhat near the freezing point."

Not Very Satisfactory, That

And Then the Fun Began

More Than One Sort of Gold

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"GO! GO to—Halifax! Anywhere out of my sight!" Myrtle stormed.

"Drury, her young sister, laughed teasingly as she flung back: "Thank! But Minge Junction is plenty bad enough. Whatever made you camp in it, Sis Flower?"

"Shut up! Let me think!" Myrtle hissed through set teeth.

Drury had the money—rather her guardian did. The pair were half-sisters. Myrtle, exquisitely dark, slender and graceful as her name flower, with the accents of velvet dark eyes and red coral lips, fiery, self, dominant, was ill-lust in the role of dependent.

Drury was fat, but not placid. A shrewd bargainer, she was relentless in keeping bargains once made. Her mother, grandchild of plain hill folk, had mysteriously inherited a half million. It had bought her a husband, in the person of a renowned yet fascinating spendthrift.

When she was killed in a runaway accident two years later, cynics said one to another: "The luck of Drury Greer!" He had been left very handsomely provided for—with only that lump of a baby, named for him, as the fly in the ointment.

Drury inherited all her mother's longing for power and high place. At ten, when her father died, leaving Myrtle scant tangible assets, she had driven her first bargain. Myrtle was to stay on, keeping the home up to Greer level, until Drury, properly trained and polished, had been launched socially and put in the way of making a brilliant marriage—this in return for a life of easy luxury.

Child that she was, Drury had realized this was her only chance. She had no background—all her mother's people were dead. Luck—in a way. The money bought her only a sort of shielded tolerance from the Greers. All that is, but Myrtle—who albeit she stormed and raved sometimes, stood loyally to her promise despite the protests of Greers, and Lacy's, her mother's kindred. Her heart had for two years belonged to one Elliot Lane, a watercolor person, restive, waiting longer for his love.

It was this that had moved Myrtle to the desperate venture of Minge Junction—a place she had been told where money counted for everything. At home folk were barely civil to Drury now just turned seventeen. Despite the long bickering, the stormy outbreaks, Myrtle had somewhat of sisterly love for the lone creature. Until she saw her in the way of becoming safely married she could not feel that she had a right to her own happiness.

They had come a day back to the gorgeous hotel. But as yet they themselves had not been seen. Raymond Carr, Esq., stood as a lion in the path. He was a sort of human Blue Book, knowing all about everything, everybody, all the nice points of usage. Why, Oh! Why had Fate sent him here? Myrtle had met him casually in her first winter out. He had deigned to keep up the acquaintance, telling her hostess: "She is too beautiful—unless she had the million." Poor, fat, free-spoken Drury would be fair game for him.

Drury had vanished. Myrtle sat pondering a quick vanishing by the night train. She started to ring up the office and say so, but set down almost fainting at what she saw through the open balcony window. Drury, bareheaded, standing mighty straight, facing Raymond Carr. He was smiling down at her—as he rarely had smiled at anything feminine. She had given him the thrill of his life—in blue linen, her broad cheeks richly pink, her clear blue eyes dancing, sandy tendrils clinging to her white forehead, she was an adorable milkmaid. To his dismay he had heard himself asking her: "Would you like a spin to the lake this morning?"

Practical Good Things

WE ARE coming to the season when a hot drink after a cool ride will be welcome.

Grape Juice and Marshmallow.—Add the juice of a lemon to a quart of grapejuice and let it come to a boil, adding a stick of cinnamon and half a dozen cloves. Strain hot into glasses and add two marshmallows to each glass, cut into quarters. If the grape juice is rich, a cupful of water may be added. This is a nice drink for skaters as it can be taken in a thermos bottle and kept piping hot.

In spite of the derision which the good old bread pudding has to endure, it is still a favorite in many homes.

Bread Pudding.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, two slices of bread buttered, and one egg. Beat the egg and add the sugar; when well mixed add the milk slowly, heating all the time. Place the buttered bread in a baking dish, pour over the milk and egg; the bread will rise to the top of the pudding dish, making it crust. Allow it to stand one hour, then bake in a hot oven long enough to set the custard. Serve with cream and sugar or a hard sauce.

Old-Fashioned Vegetable Soup.—Get a veal knuckle and have it cracked so that all the marrow will be exposed. Treat a good beef shank in the same way. Place all the bones in a large kettle, cover with cold water and bring to a simmer and let simmer for two or three hours. Now add a carrot sliced, a piece of celery root finely minced, an onion or two, a small turnip cut into dice, and a half cupful of chopped cabbage. Then add a few diced potatoes. Cook with a tomato or two cut into bits until all the vegetables are tender, then serve piping hot.

Kohl-rabi is such a dainty vegetable when nicely cooked. Cut into cubes and simmer when cooked tender, in slightly salted water, with a rich butter sauce.

Practical Good Things

WE ARE coming to the season when a hot drink after a cool ride will be welcome.

Grape Juice and Marshmallow.—Add the juice of a lemon to a quart of grapejuice and let it come to a boil, adding a stick of cinnamon and half a dozen cloves. Strain hot into glasses and add two marshmallows to each glass, cut into quarters. If the grape juice is rich, a cupful of water may be added. This is a nice drink for skaters as it can be taken in a thermos bottle and kept piping hot.

In spite of the derision which the good old bread pudding has to endure, it is still a favorite in many homes.

SIMPLE DRAWING LESSONS

Try drawing this decorative shrub. It is easier than it looks if you sketch in the big simple shapes first. Be sure not to go ahead until these are right. Then draw the construction lines and always leave the detail until last. What may seem the most difficult will be found easiest if your drawing has been developed correctly from the beginning. It is good practice to finish your drawing with either pen or brush and then color it with crayon or water color.

Monday's League
 A. B. C. crawled out of last place Monday evening by winning three games, taking them off Kehe Motors, who are second place in the League. The A. B. C's give credit for their success to Herman Meyer, who although he was supposedly on the other side, his bowling was decidedly favorable to the other fellows.
 The Cement works defeated the Barbers two games. The Chevies took two off Mike Casey. The Barbers are now the tail enders and say that they enjoy having a place with plenty of room to turn around in. No competition there.
 The A. B. C's think that they are going to travel upward rather fast and warn the other teams to get out of their way if they do want to get run over.

 Neither the Elevators or the

HIT OR MISS

No doubt you have heard of your friend or your neighbor telling tales about the other fellow, that you had a few rough words in the past somewhere or some time ago.
 This story or tale is told to Mrs.
 A. she tells Mrs. B. and then the other party gets it. Well the thing ends up like this 40 words taken from it, and a hundred and forty added to it, and the fellow who don't say, I, yes or no, is wondering why people act so strange to him. I have heard things about people that made me mad, and when I met them I did not treat them very good. Why? Just because Mr. A. did not tell the right tale, but added a few more things to it.
 Our church, just take any one in town, and within it you will find trouble. Why? just because Mrs. or Mr. A just added ten or more words to the tale, he or she had passed to her, and did not get it right. Remember dear reader there is always an end to our sayings, and to our doings. Yes, and there is an end to like so if we live our life, a true one, our reward is a home, beyond to weigh these going around stories, my dear reader, is to get both sides of the story, and not only the one side you have heard, and then you can be the judge, but don't pass it on to the other party, just because
 Mrs. A said it. If you do, you don't only harm others but you harm yourself.
 Judge not according to a person's appearance, but judge his ways, and his sayings, and his doings, for a beggar in his rags is far better off, than a well dressed person, that is if God's doings are within him. You may, no doubt know just the meaning of the above, that is the scale of what I call "Justice." But my opinion is as follows: the scale of justice, the meaning is the defending and enforcing power of righteousness, and remember it reminds us that God requires us to decide right, even unto the end. So my dear reader be true and steadfast in this as well as in all things, and think before you speak, that your lips speak the truth.

For as the grass withereth and the flowers fade, so is the way of our lives passing day in, and day out. There is a little good in everyone and let's meet our end in peace.—Herman F. Lewis, Arlington Heights, Ill.

OBSERVER'S NOTES

We start each week, about Monday To urge a "Go to Church Sunday." Well, there are five here you know Who can tell where to go! So, to help them decide— With a great glow of pride We say—"Come to 'our' Church Next Sunday."

About the way of it, isn't it? Zeal not so much to win souls, on to bring the un-churched into the Christian influence of God's house, as to bring "numbers" into our own special church. Are these observations wrong?

To avert this spirit of selfishness, even when it may result in good, it would save much hard feeling not to say much laborious canvassing if each new family, or individual coming into Arlington Heights, would at once seek out the church with which most intimately identified, and in that church, whichever he maybe, find welcome. And I hope it may prove to be—"our" church!

Speaking of churches permit me to mention the Thanksgiving service in the M. E. church Wednesday night, last week, which was well attended rather a larger audience than would have been possible, had the service been held Thursday morning, when the majority were making ready either to receive guests or to be guest in other homes, and the table must be spread, and the turkey basted and the auto put in order to keep ahead of the motor cop, on the highway. O, yes, there was no time for church Thursday morning.

It is none too early to talk about buying your

BOLTES SHOE STORE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS ILL.

To be sure in this land of ours all men, and persons, are born "free and equal," but Thanksgiving birds are not. We read that President Coolidge received a fifty pound turkey for his Thursday's dinner. And here in Arlington Heights was a family of four who dined on a three pound chicken, and were as free in "pursuit" of happiness as ever president could be—even a most economical one. Yes and they caught a whole lot of the happiness too; even a larger portion than a 50 lb. turkey could bring. And there was true Thanksgiving.

We were just congratulating our town on its escape from death during the Thanksgiving season, when comes the word of the death of Mrs. James Johnson, whose life has not been a "primrose path" and who has striven to be a faithful mother. Of late she had been a great sufferer. It was sad for her family, that death came when the holiday rejoicing was all about them.

It matters not how bright the day Death—over all still holds its sway While some are making gay and glad, Death takes his toll—others are sad.

A Mr. Nelson, cousin of Mr. A. Flodin, a leather worker, who has been down in Florida, in the work of manufacturing golf bags came back north last week, much the worse for the malaria which he had a siege of, and which he says prevails in that region. He said the floods, the stagnant pools, and other conditions caused by the recent disaster is the cause of much sickness. This man was but a sorry shadow of his former self. Illinois looks good to those who have such experiences.

Noticed in a Chicago paper that more than a score of Chicago society women were patronesses of a sale of "Fireless Industries" from Berea College, Kentucky. Reproductions from old hand looms and spinning wheels, among the mountain women of Kentucky. The notice did not mention the object of the bazaar, or for what the funds of sales were to be used. Mrs. A. F. Volz has for several years handled coverlets, quilts, and spreads made by the women of the south. Selling them to citizens in this locality for the benefit of the Woman's Missionary society, in which she is a zealous worker. Not quite a "society leader."

Let me remind parents who are seeking all things excellent for their children that Miss Helen McKenzie, curator of The Children's Gallery, Art Institute, will give free lectures on the following Saturday mornings at 9:30 o'clock: December 4; December 11, and December 18. 1st lecture: Some Renaissance Palaces in France and Italy; 2nd, Donatello and Gilbert of Florence and 3rd, The Della Robbia family of Florence. Now friends since these lectures are free, would not your children be more benefited by taking them to the Art Institute, than to toy orgies, and the display of grotesque Santa Claus?

If you must go to the city Sunday afternoons, take your family, and your neighbors family too if you can and attend that popular free course of lectures now on at the Art Institute. These free lectures were inaugurated by Lord Dunsany, Chicago's noted sculptor, who freely gives of his time and energy that the public may become better acquainted with the dignity and beauty of the sculptors art. The next lectures will be given December 5th and 12th. Admission free to all.

And here December ushers in Old winter with a boisterous din; The wild battalions of the storm

Trying to quench our hearthfires warm, North winds that drive his brood along— Snow storms and ice as iron strong. Oh yes, December ushers in Old winter with a furious din Blow, you mad brood, blow fierce and mad. And spread your sleet sails white and proud. December ever must give way, To the alluring warmth of May. May and December, so much said, 'Tis all that comes between—I dread!

Just pardon here a somewhat personal allusion: "Observer," is no chance or stolen nom de plume. It ticks me sore to note others picking it up for their use. As long ago as 1851, I remember the name "New York Observer," and that date, the first I can remember and more than fifty years, the name was fixed to the efforts of my pen. In Chicago it was my pen name. On it I hold copyright and apriori—"Lissen lady!" you let that name or nom de plume alone!—Please observe it belong to Observer!

"The Army and Navy forever!" How that sentiment has for ages thrilled all patriotic hearts. "The Army and Navy" gathered in Chicago last week to test their valor, not in bloody warfare but in a glorious sport. How we were all just crazy about it, and what crowds gathered to shout and cheer those brave soldiers and marines. That was right and a grand sight it was to see them. So far as I know George Beardsley was the only one from Arlington Heights who was in that valiant company. And I'm sure if his father and mother went to see him as they intended—to them he appeared the bravest and best of them all, and all Arlington Heights agree with them!

A letter from a cousin in Florida informs us that there are wonderful fruit prospects for the coming year, and unless freezes come later to destroy there will be a large crop of all kinds of Florida fruits. Well, that is encouraging. Notice that in Chicago one day last week 50 bushels of Barrian county, Michigan, apples were given to the Salvation army. The growers and consumers association, say that about 3,000 bushels of Jonathans, Baldwins and other choice apples were sold at the municipal pier market in spite of the Queen Marie counter, attraction in Chicago. Glad they gave the Salvation Army that 50 bushels. As for us, we're waiting for those fine Grimes Golden Mr. Charles Klehm is holding for us.

Talking about queens and such R. H. L. says Queen Marie was the first honest to goodness Queen ever seen in Chicago. Why R. H. L. haven't you read history? Don't you know about the Hawaiian queen with unpronounceable name, who was in Chicago in 1890, 2 or 3, and Queen Eulalia, of Spain, and Indian queens galore. To say nothing of those sundry and sundry queens you so ruthlessly swore to tear from your own remaining deck, if Queen Marie didn't take her back from off your heart and her form from off your door,—or language to that effect. R. H. L. is growing careless. The come back windsor has quite upset him.

Whatever shall we do if that mild attractive western coast does not cease from luring our friends and neighbors away from Arlington Heights? We might lay the question before Marconi, Edison, the village council. Three families in the last year have torn out deep roots, and left us, the Helmskins, the Cruickshanks, and now Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Volz, are preparing to go. We are glad if they are happier in that far country. But if they could just be here to see what a glorious year this is going to be in Arlington Heights, they would never want to go west and brave the danger of having their teeth shaken out by earthquakes.

Another thing those going away people will miss our improved privileges in trading at home. Here, the Chicago department stores have nothing on us. Look at Davis' dollar sales! And at our Variety store and other trading facilities. New stores, new trading advantages, and new or old, Gieseke need fear no Chicago Department Store steal his trade. But those California people would like to have a chance to buy their Christmas presents in the old home town! Truly with our dollar sales. Beauty parlors, cab service, and theatre, we are becoming vastly satisfied.

There are so many encouraging and interesting things reported and observed in school achievement activities one is gratified to hope good work is being carried on. Last week we were especially pleased to read of H. J. Byrd, country Life Director, choosing for his address before The Elgin Civic League, the subject "Training for Citizenship," a live and most essential part of training, and one I fear too often neglected. Knowing Mr. Byrd's ability and enthusiasm I feel sure he impressed his hearers, with the vast importance of "Training for Citizenship" in home and school.

"Finders are keepers" seems to be the adage adapted by The Great City of Chicago, in regard to the lost articles, many times of large value, which are through various channels left in storage. Through the courts much valuable property, stolen autos and other, lost articles, are sold and the money goes into the city treasury. Finders are keepers." As a laggerous, dishonest sentiment. Children brought up to follow this adage, are in a way taught to steal for keeping that which belong to another, is the long first step. Chicago needs to adopt a higher moral standards in this regard.

Winter stands within our gates. The flowers are dead, and their faded blooms hang on lifeless stalks along the ways where lately leaves reigned. A few withered leaves rattle in the wind as timeless bells, sounding the knell of

BILL BOOSTER SAYS:

IF EVERYBODY WHO LIVES IN THIS TOWN WOULD ONLY SPEND THEIR MONEY HERE, AND NOT BUY A THING OUT OF TOWN, IT WOULD DO OUR COMMUNITY MORE GOOD THAN A NEW FACTORY. HOW FOOLISH WE ARE TO LET ANY OF OUR LOCAL MONEY GET AWAY TO ENRICH DISTANT CITIES! " summer. The brown leaves lie in heaps over the lawn. The coal dealer snags his troubled brow as the bills seem large in proportion to the fuel that ever shrinks in the bin. Winter stands within our gates.

There are so many harmful things come into our hearts and minds; there are so many beasts of Ephraim to contend with in our lives: So many hurtful wrong motives and so many flagrant sins. I wonder if in fighting crime and wickedness, the two monsters, which firmly believe work the most harm in the world are not often enough recognized as the roots of evil, often crime; I mean envy and jealousy. Do these terrible destroyers creep in unrecognized, eating the heart in which they dwell, while seeking to destroy its victim? Do they creep into homes, churches, social circles, all unnoticed?

So many crimes, and wrongs we see and openly fight. Yet these two insidious destroyers of human happiness, are not observed and fought as they should be. Joseph's brethren afford a striking example of their cruel power. Endowed beyond his brothers with great gifts, they let jealousy and envy lead on to crime. Dwelling on a plane of thought and spiritual vision far above their conception, he was happily unsuspecting of their wicked designs.

All who lead, teach or preach, should seek to point the terrible affect of cherishing these destroying evils in mind and heart.

Is there some brother of our kin, Or maybe in life's wider range Whose gifts provoke envy within Our hearts, and nerve to actions strange?

Do we, when others loud acclaim Won for some fine thing they have done, Do we conspire to dim their fame And baw the lustre they had won?

Is there some Joseph you desire To sell in Egypt as a slave— Because his noble gifts inspire To use the power God surely gave?

Are brethren sometimes jealous yet Of brothers many colored coat— Does envy still among them fret And stifled anger clutch each throat?

Oh! Joseph, dreamer still of dreams, Such dreams they could not comprehend! An opening vista ever seems Leading you on to some great end.

Unconscious of that wondrous gift, The Spirit visions yours to know, Above their heads your gaze you lift Unseeing scorn your brothers show.

Loving those brothers with a love No petty jealous heart could hold God led you on that love to prove, Through severe testings, manifold.

In Spirit far as east from west, That love still burning in your soul, Your deepest anguish you repress, And saved them by your self control.

Jealous and envious of gifts

As something they could not define Slow anger into action drifts Where brothers murder they design.

Mark now the splendor of that scene— The brethren suppliant, and meek Where Egypt's lord, with noble mien Inwardly longs his love to speak.

Nothing is writ, on history's page Exceeds the pathos of this tale Calm Joseph, his brother's dead rage Where over all love did prevail.

Is there a singer who can soar In clearer tones than you can reach? Is there a speaker, who can pour— Than yours, more thrilling forms of speech?

Is there another who can lead The masses by a touch so fine Beyond your power, a Spirit freed In winning ways, none can define? O, isolated Spirits—lone That feel the stir of gifts within What anguish have your sad hearts known Your envious brothers love to win!

Envy and jealousy deep dyed In blood of innocence today What lovely colors you would hide. As Joseph's coat, turned Ashen gray.

O, you who lift right standards high, Who hear the call to lead, or preach— Show these two sins of deepest dye, And their destroying danger teach! —Elinore Crisler Haynes.

Next Week's Pictures At Arlington Theatre

Retinue of Plug Hats in "Blarney" Costuming a thousand men in the clothes of 50 years ago, the plug hats, the congress gaiters, the ruffled shirts and other accoutrements was one of the problems in producing "Blarney," directed by Marcel De Sano for Metro-Goldwyn-May, coming Sunday, Dec. 5, to the Arlington theatre.

James Carabine, played by Ralph Graves, was a prize fighter who came to America from Ireland and won the American championship, according to the story by Donna Byrne, which appeared in The Saturday Evening Post.

The thousand men were used as an audience for the championship battle, and it was necessary to dress every man in the correct fashion of the day.

Ralph Graves and Renee Adoree have the leading roles in the picture, and the cast includes Malcolm Waite, Paulette Duval and Margaret Seddon.

Mare Nostrum

To those who remember the most famous motion picture of all time, "The Four Horsemen," the announcement that "Mare Nostrum" another of the Ibanez novels and also directed by Rex Ingram will be at the Arlington theatre Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 6 and 7.

"Mare Nostrum," has been hailed as worthy successor to "The Four Horsemen," carrying even greater dramatic values although its story is gri mand tragic. Alice Terry is the beautiful heroine, a German spy and Tony Moreno plays the leading role of a sea captain who is tricked into aiding German submarines during the war. The production is hailed as one of the most notable pictures of the year.

"Skinner's Dress Suit"

Don't tell a lie unless you can back it up and get away with it to the bitter end. That is one of the lessons taught in one of the most laughable comedies that has yet been screened. The picture is "Skinner's Dress Suit," a Universal-Jewel coming to the Arlington Theatre, next Saturday, Dec. 11. Reginald Denny, favorite of the nation, is the star, with Laura LaPlante as the featured lead, which is enough to insure the success of any play. In the cast are Hedda Hopper, Arthur Lake, Lionel Brahm, Lucille Ward, E. J. Ratcliffe and others.

New street lights are being installed on River Grove's Wacker drive and the same for other streets will soon follow if the plans of Mr. Koenig materialize. The idea of putting a better lighting system on Grand avenue only does not seem to meet with his approval. Giving the home town people service first is his idea, and we'll agree with him that improvements in River Grove should be universal.

At a special meeting of the board Tuesday evening, Nov. 22 a petition bearing the names of the property owners adjacent to the proposed coal yard at the west end of the village was presented, in objection to it. The Monte Clare business men's parade of autos and floats passed through Elmwood Park, Monte Clare and River Grove, Wednesday and from all aspects it bespoke a message to River Grove that should be taken seriously. They are answering the peoples call for action and no doubt their advertising will lead the people whom their messages have reached to their stores and places of business. These undertakings are very costly

A contest was staged in Bensenville Saturday. Some unknown party was given a red arrow and this arrow was worth $5.00 in gold to the first person approaching that party saying "Have you the Red Arrow which I can trade for the Red Arrow prize." Early Saturday the search began and all one could hear on the streets or in stores was the familiar question. And still the hunt went on till late afternoon when Lowell Capout approached Mrs. Fox asked the proper question at the same time displaying a slip of Red Arrow money in his right hand. As Mrs. Fox was the party who had carried the arrow around all day she answered "Yes" and presented Lowell the arrow which he exchanged for a bright new $5.00 gold piece. Oh, yes he will have some Christmas spending money for his day's work and untiring search.

nevertheless effective as the business people of River Grove know. Now then the question is are you going to answer opportunity's knock or are you with the rest, going to sit back and wait until you find the key before time opportunity may have flown.

Why not be in the big swim? Petty ill feeling and prejudice will avail you nothing but failure. Your success depends upon yourself. The inexpensive method of winning success lies in the advertising pages of this paper. Everywhere the Herald goes it is a boon to neighborhood business.

Its advertising rates are lower than any other country paper and brings better results. Advertise! Get crowds to your door. Pull the trigger or drop the gun. Be a marksman or return to trapping her.

Foreign cement which arrives in this country on ocean carriers, chiefly as ballast, is putting a crimp into a freighter's cargo industry. Because of extraordinary cheap ocean freight rates, and the extremely low production cost based on foreign wages, and because they are seeking a permanent market here, the manufacturers are willing to make all sorts of prices. So this cement is being introduced in all sections of our country. Imports began in 1920 with a few hundred thousand barrels. Since that time ten million barrels of foreign cement have been landed which has displaced twenty-nine million dollars worth of American cement. American workmen alone have lost $16,500,000 the railroads $7,000,000 other manufacturers $3,000,000. In the Belgium cement works wages are ninety cents a day in gold; in the United States, $4.50.

The McAdoo battle flag has been flung to the breeze. Former Secretary of Agriculture, Edward T. Meredith proclaims him the rallying point for the "dry" Democrats in 1928. McAdoo is the man who is to "stop" Gov. Al Smith of New York, just as Smith was the rallying point of the anti-McAdoo Democrats in 1924.

In a long interview in New York Mr. Meredith insisted that the dry South and our dry West would dominate the next Democratic national convention. His opposition to the candidacy of Gov. Smith was based ostensibly and outwardly on the wet and dry issue. No mention was made by Mr. Meredith of the opposition among many Democrats to his nomination on religious grounds. It is no news to those who have followed the trend of politics that McAdoo is to seek the nomination for President in 1928. He and his friends have traveled extensively through the country in the last six months, sounding out sentiment, lining up their forces, detailing the probable McAdoo strength. Mr. McAdoo himself several months ago delivered an address in which he championed the cause of prohibition so strongly that it was generally interpreted as a bid for the support of all dry Democrats.

Many of the jobholders in bureaus of State and Federal Government work hardly two hours out of eight. They were given their jobs by politicians who knew there was no demand for their service, and the kind of definition of these politicians and jobholders is crooks. They are dishonest and they know it.

The division between honesty and dishonesty is a plain, visible line. There is no compromise. An honest man has no mental reservation in his attitude toward a day's work for his employer. He does what he is paid to do, and he knows he should do it as quickly and efficiently as he can.

WARNING TO AUTO DRIVERS

Practically every automobile magazine has published a warning against closing the doors of a garage while operating an automobile, a practice quite common in warming up the motor on cold mornings. With all of this warning as well as government warning, the press of the country teems with news of fatalities, persons asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas. It is a very dangerous practice, and instances have been brought to light where the person has become unconscious within one minute's time. This well illustrates the dangerous part played by carbon monoxide gas.

We are urging the people to take care, and warning signs ought to be displayed in some prominent place in the garage, all of this with a view of warning the drivers of cars against the deadly gas.

When a Bee says anything, he means it. A scientist is quoted as having said that bees talk with their feet. We have never minded much what bees said to us, but we have never thought extremely highly of the few that have taken a seat on us before beginning their conversation.

WATCH BABY GROW

The growth of a boy or girl from babyhood makes an interesting study for one who is willing to keep an accurate record of sizes, weights and heights.

During the first year the average baby grows about nine inches. If this rate were kept up for ten years, the school boy of ten would be over eight feet tall, and a giant in the making.

During the second year, however baby grows only three or four inches, and gradually decreases his growth per year from then on until he attains his full height around his twenty-fifth year.

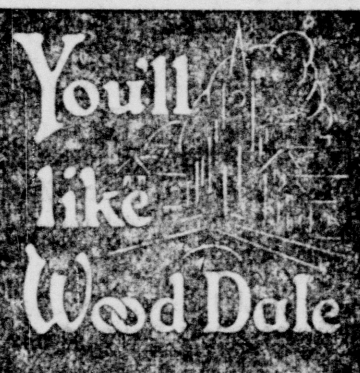

As for weight, boys make their greatest gain in their sixteenth or seventeenth year, while girls put on poundage more noticeably in their fourteenth. Incidentally, although little boys and young men are stronger than girls and young women of their age, girls from eleven to seventeen are physically able to handle boys of their age.

From now until April neither boy nor girl will gain much weight or height. When April comes they will begin to sprout upwards again like a little tree, but not until hot weather will they begin to add weight quickly.

"Is a steer a young horse or a pig?" asked one city girl to the other.

"I don't know," was the reply.

"They had no poultry of any kind where I stayed last summer."

HONESTY AND DISHONESTY

There are just as many shades of honesty as there are shades of dyes, according to some persons' viewpoint.

Many a man who wouldn't steal one cent in cash under any circumstances has no hesitancy whatever in stealing his employer's time.

And the only difference between stealing money and stealing time is that they can jail you for stealing the former, while the worst punishment that can come from stealing the latter is to be fired.

The conscientious man will steal neither. He knows that he is better off.

The DOOM TRAIL

By Arthur D. Howden Smith
Author of PORTO BELLO GOLD, Etc.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Harry Ormerod, proscribed traitor to King George as a Stuart partisan, returning from France to London, rescues Alderman Robert Juggins from a band of assassins. Juggins proves to be the grandfather of a famous adventurer, Ormerod's father, to whom Juggins feels himself indebted. Ormerod kills Juggins and has abandoned the Stuart cause.

CHAPTER II.—Juggins tells Ormerod of a Jacobite plot in the American colonies to weaken England by forwarding French interests. Their aim is the return of James to the English throne. At his head is one Andrew Murray, a Scotsman, and a Frenchman, De Veulle, deadly enemy of Ormerod. The two are in London furthering their schemes. Ormerod sees them. Anticipating the plotters' early return to France, he arranges for Ormerod to go there with letters to Governor Burnett, a friend of Juggins, and work to foil Murray.

CHAPTER III.—Disguised as Juggins' servant, Ormerod takes passage to America. He meets a Scottish girl, daughter of Murray, an ardent Jacobite. De Veulle recognizes him, and Ormerod denounces Ormerod to the girl as a traitor to the Stuart cause. Believing him, she repulses Ormerod's protest of friendship. He is thrown into the sea by an unseen assailant.

CHAPTER IV.—Ormerod, regaining the deck, has recognized his assailant as Murray's servant, Tom, a traitor to the Stuart cause. Ormerod saves an Indian from insult. The Indian, who speaks English, is Ta-wan-nears, a Seneca chief.

"Murray spends part of his time in New York or in Albany, but most of the year he is absent. He says he is on trading expeditions—and he may not disprove it. But we think he stays at a station which is said to form a depot for the stores smuggled over the Doom Trail. Black Robe is reported to have a chapel there."

"'Tis called La Vierge du Bois," added Colder.

"And where is it?"

"If I knew I should order a levy of the militia and burn it down at once," retorted the governor.

"But you must have some idea where it is," I pressed incredulously.

Governor Burnett put down his pipe and unrolled a large scroll map which lay amongst the papers on the table.

"This is New York, Master Ormerod. Our settlements are confined to the coast districts, the island of Nassau (Long Island)—he motioned toward the windward shore, and the valley of Hudson's river. We have barely begun the task of colonization. There is room here for every soul in England—and to spare."

With his pipe-stem he pointed to the upper left corner.

"All this country is virgin forest. On the north and northwest it is bounded by the inland sea we call Lake Cadagochi (Lake Ontario); to the southwest stretch the Adirondack mountains. Somewhere between those boundaries runs the Doom Trail. There are thousands of square miles of wilderness to search for it."

"And the Keepers of the Trail to guard its mystery," put in Colder.

"Who are they?" I questioned, as anxious as a small boy for further details.

"The Ho-nun-ne-gwen-ne-yah," he replied. The Indians are a superstitious people, and they have come to believe that there is some supernatural agency behind the Keepers of the Trail. In plain English, they fear the Trail is haunted, they tell us, by the False Faces, a race of demons from the underworld, to whom Murray has sold his soul, and that the demons have rallied to his aid."

"At every turn we run against the shrewdness and wit of this fellow Murray," exploded the governor. "'Tis at once a tribute to his ability, and perhaps an index to our inferiority, that we have never been able to secure certain information of his operations."

"'Tis evident, your excellency," I ventured, "that the lords of trade will accept only positive evidence that he hath evaded the law."

"That means legal proof of smuggling," reflected the governor.

"And now that the lords of trade have suspended our law, his operations are no longer illegal, strictly speaking," said Colder. "But I make no doubt he will continue to handle the bulk of his goods over the Doom Trail, for he will not care to have his dupes in the province realize the enormous tribute they pay France through him."

Governor Burnett brought his fist down upon the table with a thud. "Gadsdill!" he swore. "There is naught for it but war! We must be after the dog! We must run him down! But we must move unofficially. What say you, Colder?"

"We can do nothing with official support," rejoined the surveyor general, "and 'tis probable we shall receive the instructions of the lords of trade to suspend the law by the next Bristol packet."

"There can be no question of that," agreed the governor. "Well, the law shall be suspended. I will have the suspension publicly proclaimed. Then under cover we must concert the measures to be taken. This will be for Master Ormerod. Do you still crave the opportunity, knowing the full measure of its peril, sir?"

"Master Juggins gave me a letter to one Peter Corlaer, a—"

Colder sat suddenly erect.

"Peter came this morning with the Seneca chief, if your excellency will remember."

"So he did. We will have him in."

Colder went out and returned at once with two companions. One I recognized, to my amazement, as the Indian I had befriended an hour or two earlier. He greeted me with a faint smile. To the governor he rendered the splendid arm-high salute, and his deep voice boomed out:

"Qua, Ga-en-gwa-ra-go!" ("Hail Great Swift Arrow"—the Indians name for the governor of New York, whoever he might be.)

The other man was more like a tavern keeper than a woodsman. At first glance he seemed all panache, but when you studied him closely you saw that his fat was firm and hard and formed a sheathing for the most powerful set of muscles any man ever had. His face was tremendous, with little, insignificant features; but his eyes, behind the rolls of fat which almost masked them, twinkled with constant interest and animation, betraying the air of stolid stupidity he affected.

"This is Corlaer, Master Ormerod," said the governor. "And with him is come a friend of ours, one of the two war-chiefs of the Six Nations. Peter, Master Ormerod hath a letter for you from Master Juggins in London."

"Ja," he said vacantly.

I handed him the letter. He turned it over and over in his hand and picked at the seal. Then he handed it to the Indian.

"You read it," he said.

"I looked from one to the other with astonishment; but 'twas the governor who intervened.

"Your pardon, Peter," he said good-naturedly enough, "but that letter happens to deal with a most confidential subject."

"Oh, ja," said Corlaer indifferently. "But I do not read."

"Take the letter, Ga-en-gwa-ra-go," said the Indian. "Ta-wan-nears does not seek your secrets. But you need have no fears. This young Englishman is Ta-wan-nears' friend."

And in his sonorous English, with a slight guttural intonation, he recounted how I had rescued him from his childish persecutors.

The incident recalled my promise, and I broke in impetuously upon his closing words.

"Aye, your excellency, but he hath forgotten to add that I pledged myself to beseech you to make it illegal to mock at Indians in the city streets."

"An excellent thought," approved Colder. "We have trouble enough winning the friendship of the tribes without subjecting the visiting chiefs to humiliation in our midst."

"It shall be done at once," declared the governor.

"He drew forward a fresh sheet of paper and hurriedly scribbled upon it the necessary instructions, then returned his attention to the Indian.

"Ta-wan-nears," he continued, "I need your friendship. I need the friendship of every one of your people for our king."

The Seneca drew himself erect.

"Ta-wan-nears is your friend, Ga-en-gwa-ra-go. He is the friend of Onontio (the French governor general of Canada, regardless of identity), who rules at Quebec. Most of the white people are not well-wishers to the Indian. I am come here with Corlaer to prove my friendship. On the frontier 'tis said Joncaire, the Frenchman who governs the trading post by the falls of Jagara (Niagara) is about to begin the building of a stone fort."

"A fort!" protested the governor. "Sure, 'tis impossible! 'Twould be a direct violation of the Peace of Utrecht."

"'Tis true," spoke up Corlaer. His voice was high and squeaky, and sounded ridiculous coming from such a giant.

"Hath the building begun?" demanded the governor.

"I think not. Ta-wan-nears brought me der wordt at Onondaga."

People of the Long House—Indian name for Iroquois). The French always have fought with us. The English have aided us. The French pay little for our furs; the English pay much.

"Ga-en-gwa-ra-go, I think the white man can never be an honest friend to the Indian, for he wants what the Indian has; but Ta-wan-nears prefers the Englishman to the Frenchman, whatever may be the issue."

"Na-ho." ("I have finished.")

I can give no adequate conception of the impressiveness with which this speech was delivered by a savage speaking in a tongue strange to him. Every word rang in my ears.

"Who is this man?" I whispered to Colder as he finished.

"He is one of the two war chiefs of the Iroquois league, both of whom are Senecas. His name, which signifies 'Needle-Breaker,' is actually a form of title which goes with the office. Moreover, he is a nephew of the Ro-y-en-eh Done-ho-ga-well, who is Guardian of the Western Door of the Long House. He was taken as a youth and given to the missionaries—with the result that you see."

He broke off, for the governor was addressing me.

"Have you any objection, Master Ormerod, to my acquainting the chief and Corlaer with what we have been discussing?"

I shook my head.

He turned to the Indian.

"The letter which you hold in your hand, Ta-wan-nears, is from Master Robert Juggins of London, who was some time in the province when you were a lad."

"I remember Master Juggins," interrupted Ta-wan-nears. "He sent me my first musket. Is this Englishman his friend?"

"Yes," said the governor. "He comes direct from Master Juggins, recommended to me for use in the plight I find myself in."

"I will help the Englishman," agreed Ta-wan-nears eagerly.

"But you know nothing of the cause I am enlisting you in," protested the governor.

Mr. Lonnquist is preparing a skating pond for our citizens. The shelter house is already built and as soon as cold weather sets in our boys and girls will have a good sized pond to skate on, then maybe a toboggan slide and everything we hear.

Teacher Jackish is the proud father of a bouncing baby girl born Thanksgiving day. We congratulate and are pleased to report that mother is doing nicely.

The parks have been started in the Country Club subdivision and there are to be plenty of them. We hope that these beauty spots in our village may be taken care of for many years to come.

We are pleased to see Ed Pohlman out again and hope that he is to be a well man for sometime to come.

What was this we heard? Is it true that we are to have a real Christmas tree in our community this year? The fixings are all to be on it, from what we understand. Mrs. Duntman is well again and from the reports we have heard our village is a pretty healthy one. Thanksgiving evening the church services were well attended. Rev. Mueller preached the sermon and a real Thanksgiving sermon it was—one that was true and one that brought home its message. Rev. Eisefeldt held the confessional services and he delivered a very impressive message.

The Development Association is having their office building repainted and are making improvements all around.

The subdividers operating in our village are all pleased and everyone is getting along with the other fellow. It is indeed a rare case but they are all doing what our village board tells them and thereby saving themselves considerable trouble.

STRONG WORDS BUT TRUE

The citizen who regards himself too important or too big to take an interest in local affairs is never missed when he leaves. He may imagine he is traveling along with the other people, but no one envies him or seeks the position which he holds.

It is poor policy to run contrary to something for the mutual benefit and protection of every resident so all building it up, not tearing it down effort should be directed toward or ignoring it.

By setting himself up as better or above the community booster, the knocker imperils his own fortune and opportunities. So long as he lives here, he must go along with the community in its advancement. If he does not come down a bit and be sensible, he is apt to regret it.

In addition to all this, the booster will testify that he can enjoy life much better by taking the right attitude toward the place where he lives and all enterprises for community betterment.

We are in an age which glorifies physical perfection. Not only glorifies; but places a fictitious value upon physical development, while intellect receives not even casual consideration.

EAST MAINE

Marcus Toepel spent Thanksgiving holidays with his parents in East Maine. He is studying pharmacy at Valparaiso, Ind.

Friends of Mrs. Wm. Wilke were surprised to hear of her sudden illness last week when she was confined to her bed by a heart attack. Latest reports showed a favorable condition although she was obliged to remain in bed for several days.

St. Matthews Ladies Aid will have their next meeting Wednesday, Dec. 8 at 7:30 in the school hall. Hostesses will be Mrs. August Gevecke, Mrs. Ehler Goettse and Miss Ella Haase.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ahrens were host and hostess to a crowd of merry-makers Sunday evening, who came to help Mrs. Ahrens celebrate her birthday anniversary. Bunco was the main sport with appropriate prizes furnished. All present displayed their pleasure at the good time shown them and left at a late hour wishing their hostesses many happy returns.

East Maine Pleasure club have their next social affair booked for Saturday, Dec. 11. It is to be a dance at John Mueller's hall, Mont Grove. As this will be the last dance for the club in 1926 they are taking pains to make it a memorable one so nothing will be left undone to show all who attend a gala time. Of course the Marquette music makers, the snappy, popular orchestra will be on deck and everyone is urged to come early and stay late so as not to miss any of the fun. Remember, Dec. 11 at 8 p. m.

The members of Welcome Park Unterstuetzung Verein entertained their wives and families at a party at the Welcome Inn Saturday evening. Al Ahrens and 'Chief' Kenning were also present, by 'special invitation' and very ably did their part to help make the affair a success. It was an amusing sight to see the older generation endeavoring to learn the intricacies of the modern dances, and vice versa to see them whirling the young folks away to the time of their older dances. At midnight a bounteous lunch was spread in the dining hall and heartily partaken of by the crowd. Everyone had a good time and will be waiting for the next party to be given by the Verein.

Suppose a terrible wrong were committed by someone in your childhood days a crime that would blight the happiness of your whole life, and then suppose, that grown to manhood, you should suddenly find the wrong doer for whom you have been searching, just what would you do? Oh it is a tense moment and one that is hard to decide, but don't bother about trying to figure out what you would do in a case like this, an easier solution would be for you to come to see "The Path Across the Hill", the play to be given by the Truck Gardeners Association in St. Matthews School Hall, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday next week. Then you will be given an opportunity to see just how and why this question was solved by the parties whom it concerned. But that is just one of the thoughts of the play, there are many, many others which will thrill and amuse you as the play progresses and the story is ably enacted before your eyes. We will say no more now, lest we spoil the plot for you, but remember this, the only way to get from one side of a hill to the other side, is to cross it and if you will follow "The Path Across the Hill" Dec. 9, 10, 11 or 12 you will find that this world isn't such a bad place after all. The play begins promptly at 8 p. m.

A large number of East Mainites attended the services held Sunday for the dedication of the beautiful new Immanuel Lutheran church at Glenview. This occasion was in reality a double celebration for it marked the fiftieth anniversary of the old church and the dedication of the new house of worship. Many of our people attended the services during the day but the majority went to the evening service where they were given an opportunity to hear once more their former pastor Rev. Carl Buenger of Kenosha, Wis., who had charge of St. Matthews congregation until Rev. Toepel became pastor there 24 years ago. Rev. and Mrs. Buenger spent Sunday night in East Maine at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Gevecke, visiting other relatives and friends next day prior to their return to Kenosha.

The Reason

We bit off more than we could chew. Face to face with the worst demoralized conditions we have ever had. Cost, loss of value not considered in our mighty effort to raise cash. The critical moment has arrived. That is the situation here now. Conditions have combined to make this sale imperative. The peculiar trade conditions and a very backward season, has left us heavily overstocked, and we are now compelled to turn over our surplus stock into cash in order to pay our bills which are now due. The loss we will sustain in this sale will be compensated for in the accomplishment of our purpose.
